Dear
Denise,
Best Wishes for a very happy and successful future.

May all your dreams become realities. I feel very lucky to have known you as long as I did and hope to know you a great deal longer. I am glad that you were the first person I met when I moved into the neighborhood. I will remember your friendship with me always.

Love

Anita

God made a cliff, and on that cliff He made a pond.
But the pond sprang a leak and the water steadily trickled over the cliff—to 4/4 time. After a long period of rain, the flow of the water became so great that it pounded steps on the side of the cliff. It followed this series of declines to reach its daughter pond at the bottom. This is how God created

Dedication and Service Highlighted Father Walmsley's Years at Goretti.

By word and example, with interest and concern, Father Walmsley provided spiritual and academic leadership to all the students under his care. In his capacity as priest and principal, he fostered in us a greater awareness of the ideals of Christian womanhood and the values of our Catholic education. With both wit and wisdom, Father exemplified the qualities of a priest, educator and friend.

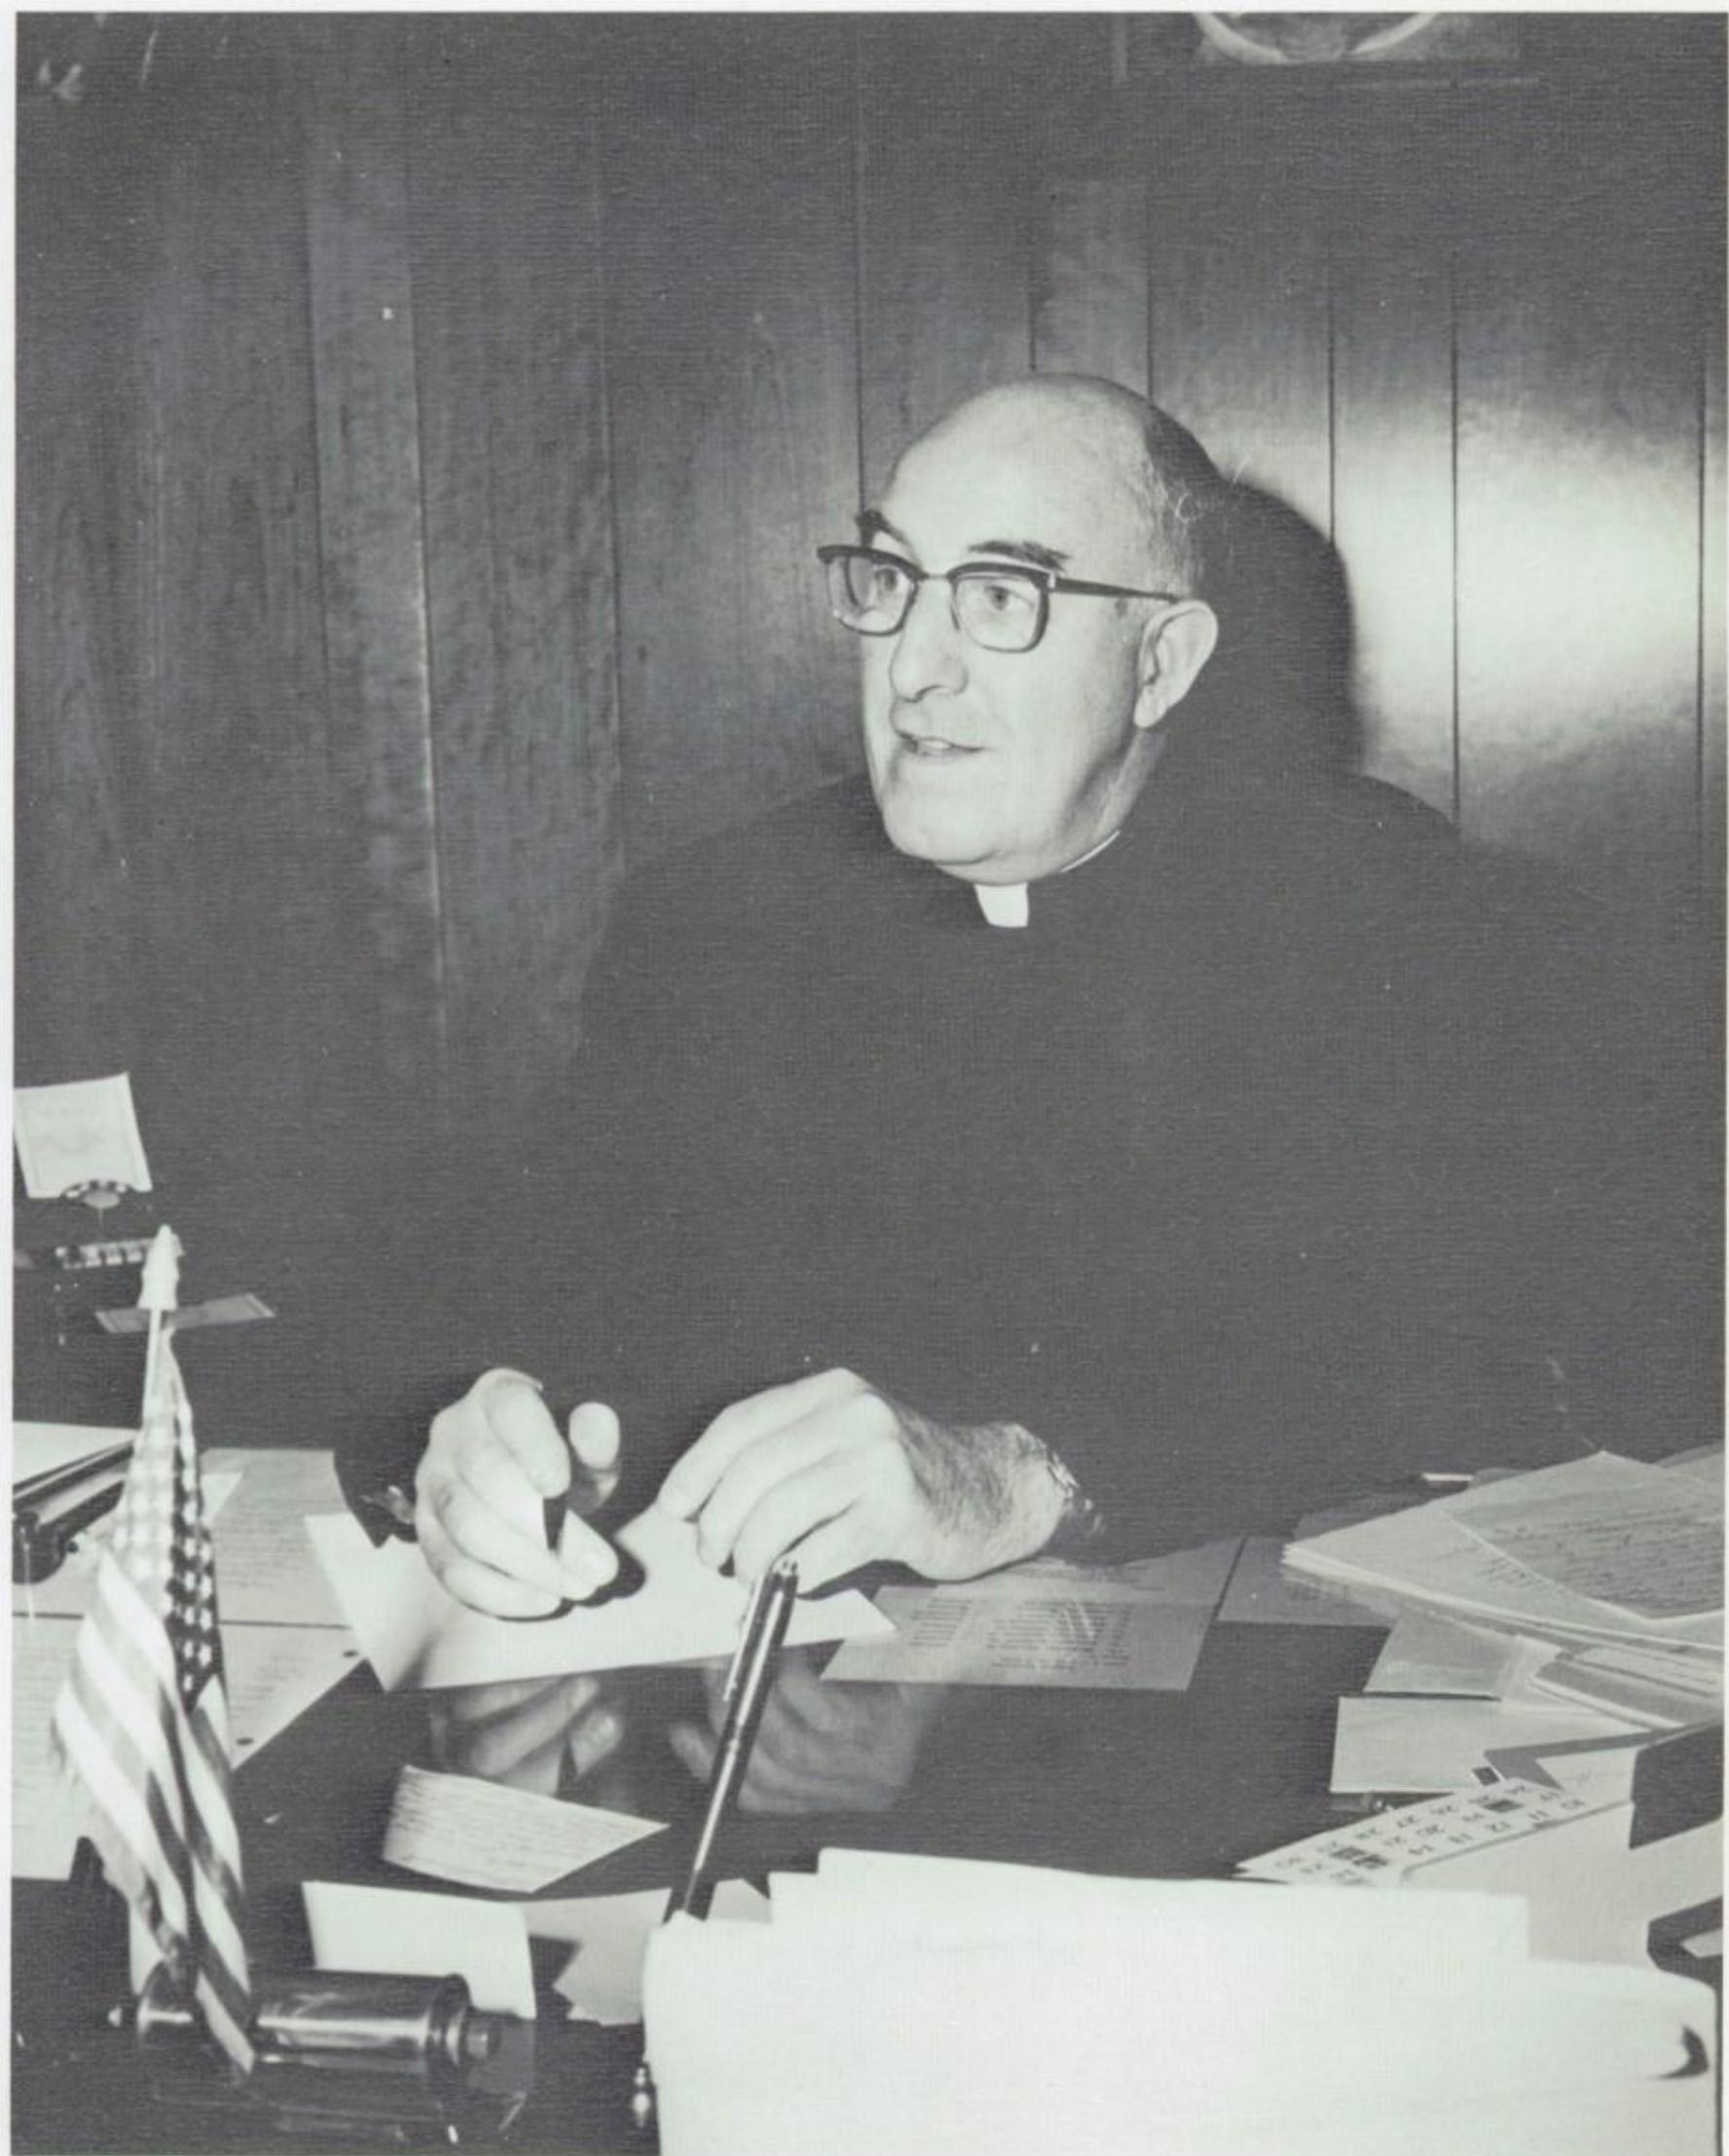

Guiding our spiritual lives, Father Walmsley delivered a homily relevant to our needs.

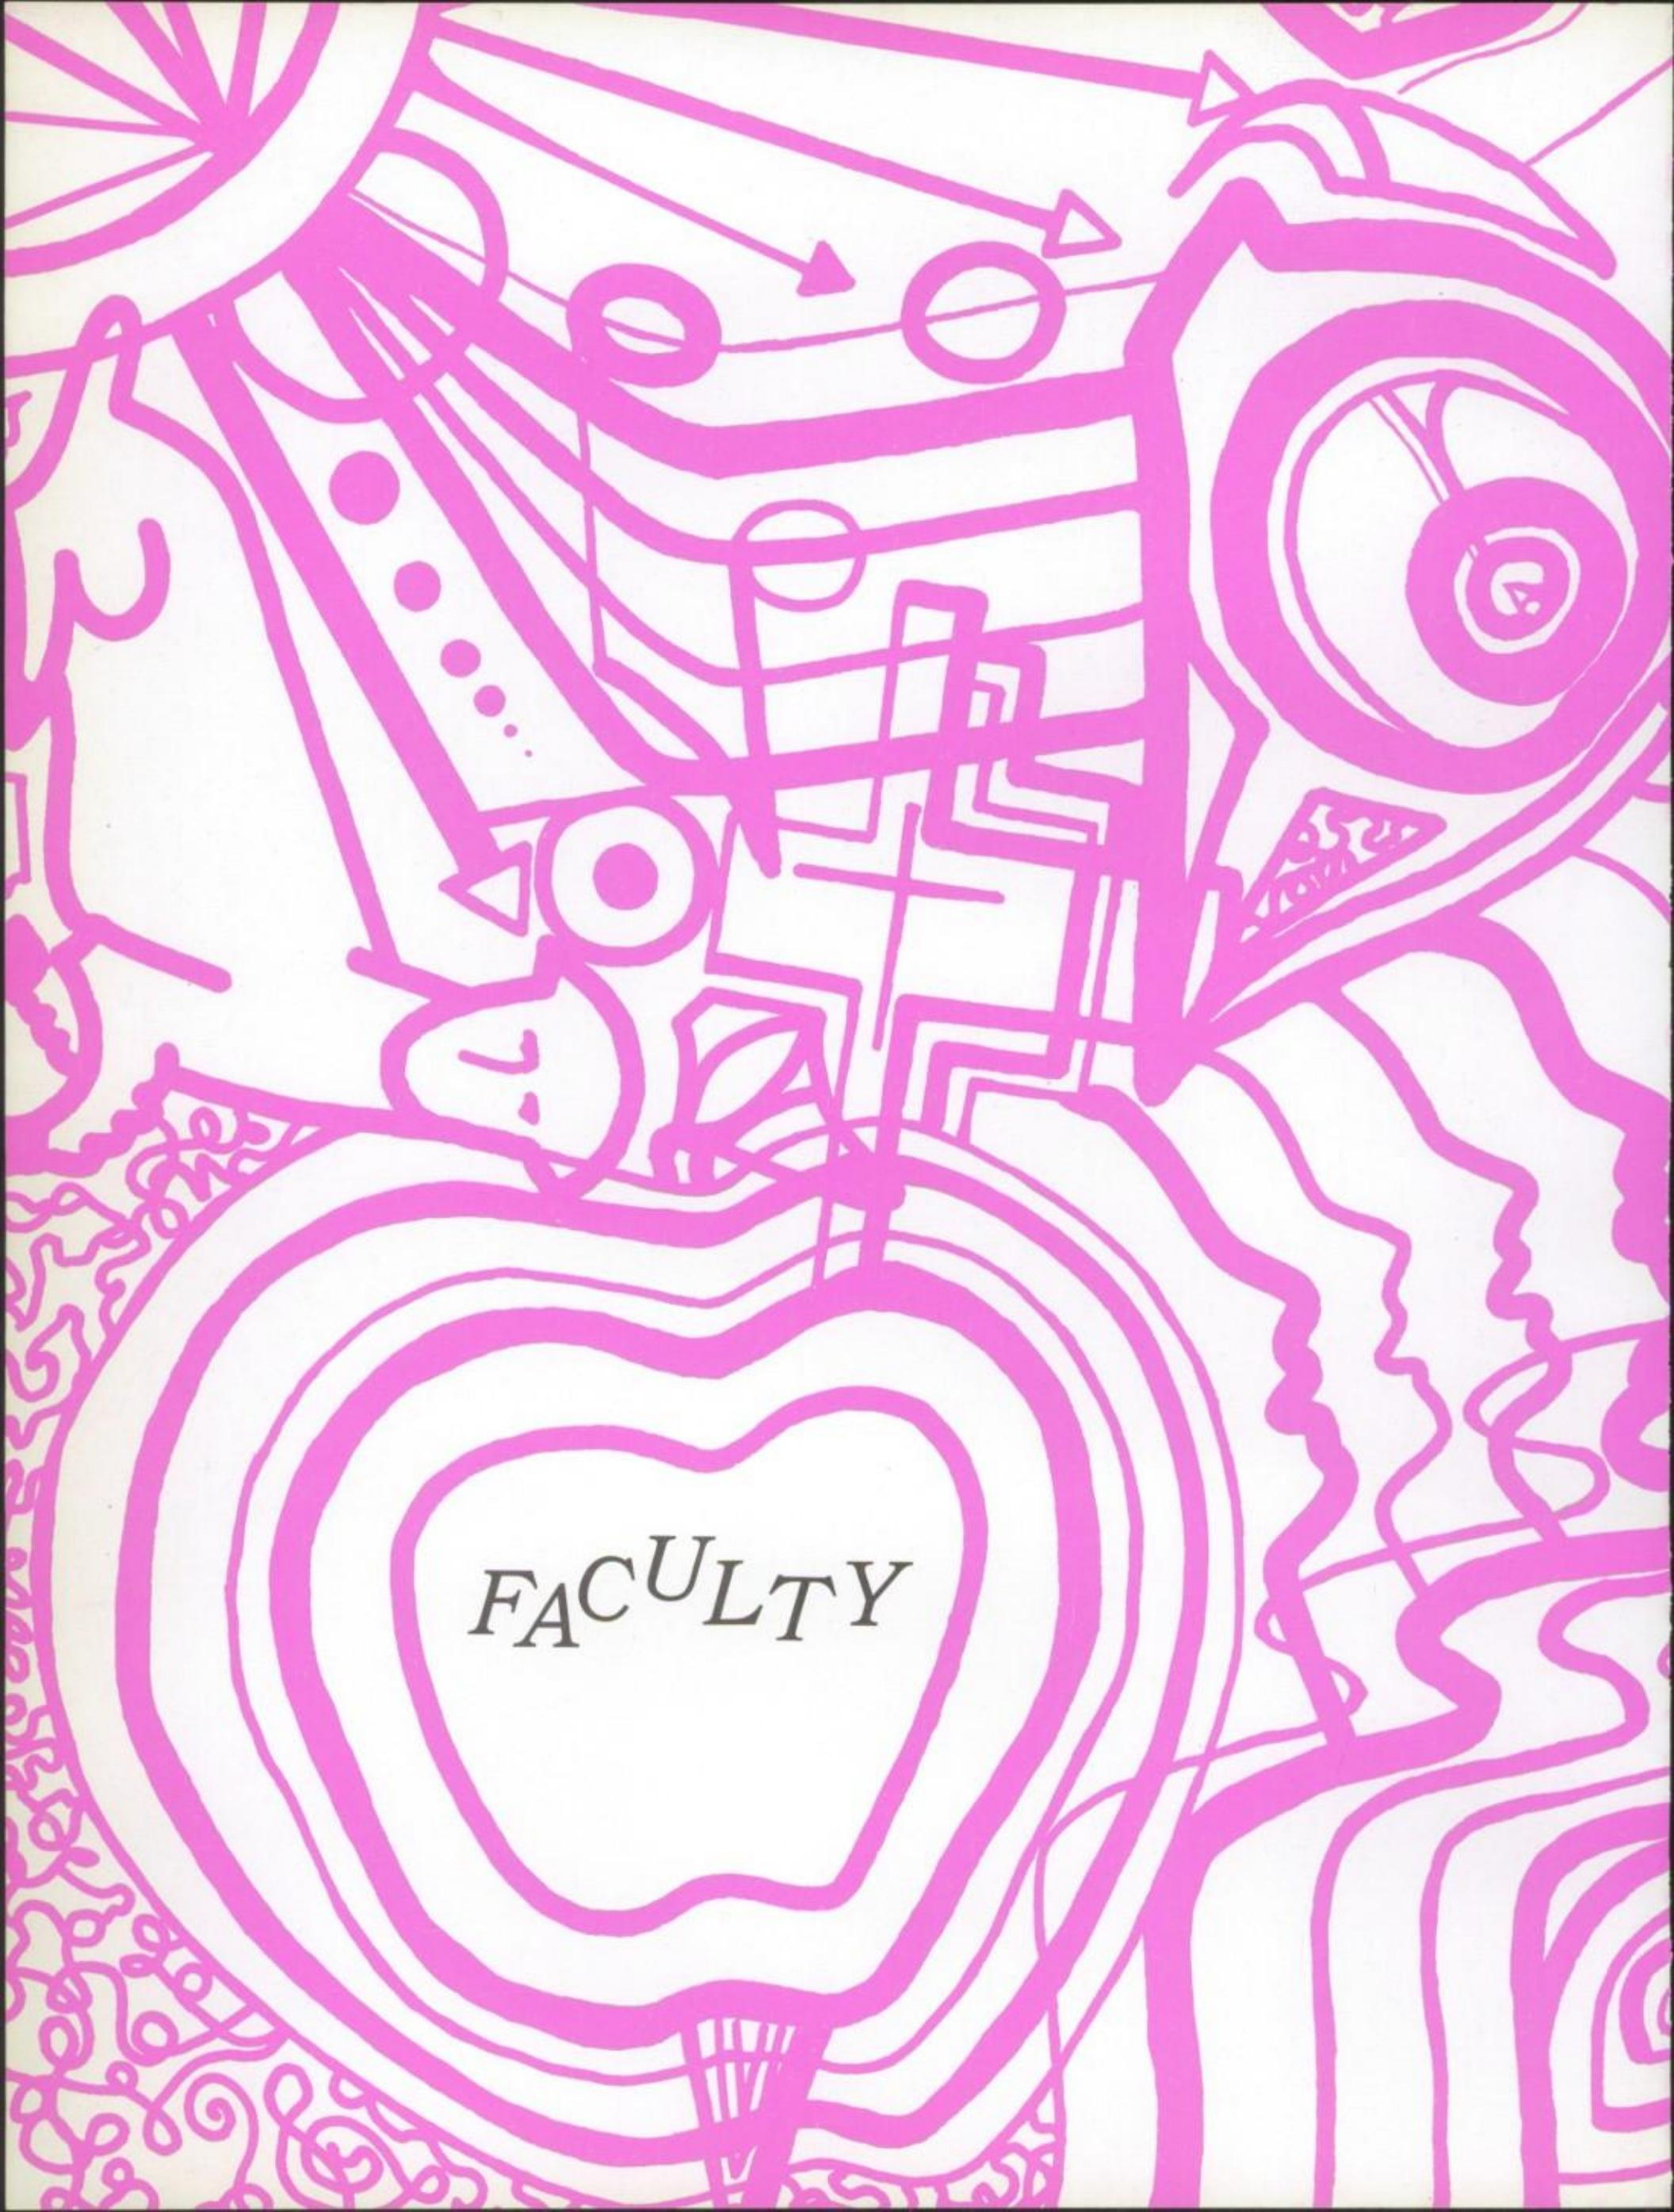

Keeping abreast with world affairs, Father Walmsley took time out to read the daily newspaper.

After settling serious matters, Father Walmsley still had time for lighter conversation with Carol Fischler, Susan Natale, and Donna Sigorelli.

Father Walmsley contemplated the possible ways and means of improving our spiritual and academic programs.

FACULTY

Understanding and patience contributed to the performance of administrative responsibilities.

As the Activity, Discipline, Guidance, and Study Coordinators supervised, Goretti continued to function as a properly run school. Through the development of varied scholastic and social programs, these prefects encouraged students to strive for self-improvement.

Religion instructors guided our quest for identity.

To bring new light to truths that never change, religion instructors combined old and new teaching techniques. Contemporary methods, such as informal discussion groups, emphasized the importance of God in our lives. Our teachers tried to instill in us a sense of personal identity in a "future-shocked" world. Activities ranging from Scripture-centered readings to anti-abortion films and lectures helped further to affirm our Christian ideals and commitment.

Social science teachers gave meaning to contemporary history.

Just as anthropologists who dig deep into the treasures of the past, our social science teachers strove to link our precious ancestry with the present, in order that we might prepare fittingly for the future. With an array of maps, research, and guest speakers, they incited both scholarship and patriotism. From these persuasive teachers our girls learned, primarily, that social involvement will maintain and protect our unalienable rights.

Science moderators motivated independent experimentation

Whether lecturing on the origin of the earth, the laws of gravity, or the molecular formula of water, our science proctors informed us about our physical environment. By giving us the opportunity to observe such experiments as the evaporation of saline solutions and the dissection of fetal pigs, they gave us new insights into the miracle of creation, and the power and wisdom of God, our Creator.

Business teachers presented situations that reflected the occupations of tomorrow.

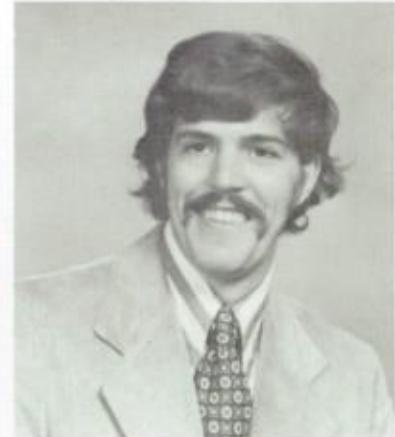

Since knowledge, skill, and practice spell success in a business career, our students aimed to emulate the example of their moderators in developing every phase of professional expertise. Our business educators taught their students that poise, grace, appearance and a congenial attitude towards others equaled efficiency in the skills of bookkeeping, typing, taking dictation, and operating office machines.

Miss Graham proclaimed, "Thumbs up" to the world of art.

In our art department, instructors guided student creations that manifested unique and personal aesthetic experiences. These teachers inspired potential Picassos who in turn, frequently enriched the decor of Goretti with talent and taste.

The teaching trio of home economics stressed the values of a wise, innovative, and industrious homemaker. Students learned the essentials of consumer knowledge: selecting superior foods, fabrics and notions at standard budget prices.

Moans, groans and body aches lessened as our coordination developed under the direction of our coaches during the physical education classes.

Though few in number, our office personnel managed our business affairs with efficiency and smoothness. With numerous other functions that included sorting mail, distributing supplies to the faculty and receiving visitors, they kept Goretti alive with buzzing activity.

Sister Joseph Bernard took a "sneak peek" at the list of honor students prior to the distribution of report cards.

Mrs. Rose DeFrancesco consulted with her colleagues, Mrs. Marie Diamond, Miss Annamarie Pino, and Miss Lori DeFlavia on the week's assignments.

Maintenance's unceasing efforts contributed to Goretti's gleam.

Helpful hands and cheerful smiles accompanied the countless tasks performed by our maintenance personnel for our more gracious living. Chores like unjamming locks, replacing light blubs, fixing blinds, and repairing desks found them always at our side. Also, on our staff, the "woman's touch" added comfort, cleanliness, and brightness necessary to make our school building our home. Finally, in our cafeteria, no effort was spared by our generous hostesses to supply, with a friendly nod, substantial lunches and snacks for approximately 3000 students and 115 faculty members.

Miss Eleanor Casey seemed satisfied after she planned nourishing lunches for 3,000 hungry students.

Our dynamic-duo of maintenance performed one of their many feats.

Mr. Fred Altobello, Mr. Joseph Lacroce, and Mr. Salvatore Guagenti paused momentarily in the midst of a heavy schedule to have their picture taken.

Cafeteria Personnel. Standing: Mrs. Catherine McCann, Mrs. Anna Romano, Mrs. Josephine Patti, Mrs. Concetta Bevilacqua, Mrs. Angelina DiNucci, Mrs. Loretta Haritagan,

Mr. Tony Pisano diligently checked progress in the list of engineering devices necessary for the day to day maintenance schedule of 3,000.

Miss Maria Caruso and Mrs. Adeline Santilli still looked pleasant after a long hard day.

CLASSES

Openness Stimulated Awareness and Self-Understanding.

Assisted by Sister Helen Budzik, sophomores prepared a liturgy for the celebration of their class Mass.

Sister Carolyn Therese shared with her senior religion students ideas on poster making as a modern form of witness and inspiration.

When students and educators examined the theology of Christianity, openness permeated the ensuing discussions. Topics spanned time from the Exodus to the Second Vatican Council. Films, especially Search, instilled in us our responsibility to cooperate with God in fulfilling our vocation. Additional movies, once-a-week lectures, plus informal discussions sharpened our awareness in knowing, understanding and working with others. From lists of suggested books, we chose paperbacks such as Beginning Your Marriage to probe the oneness of a man and woman.

During an informal class, Miss DiNubile and her religion students discussed passages of the Bible, relating them to modern day dilemmas.

Sister Marie Kramer directed her attention to Teresa Agnes and Karen Abel as they reviewed for an upcoming test.

Literary Works Broadened the Student's Views of People and Life.

By reading and analyzing, we explored the treasures of our English-American heritage. Contemporary writers such as Fitzgerald, Hemingway, and Hughs rivaled classic writers for our attention and interest. The opportunity to participate in various contests prompted students to attempt both formal and informal essays and so to develop the art of writing.

Interested English 3 students anticipated the enactment of the "Rime of the Ancient Mariner" by Sister Regina Pacis.

Sister Gertrude Bernadette gave a smile of approval as her English 4 students Debbie Rivello, Marie Massina, and Debbie Timmins recorded their presentation of Hamlet.

Learning to write a descriptive paragraph involved the development of the senses, so Angela Pallante reached into the "grab bag" in an attempt to describe the touching.

English 2 students, displaying their theoretic ability, reenacted a short play while Mrs. Mulvey registered approval.

Modern Equipment and Experience Enabled Students to Overcome Mathematical Difficulties.

In this day of lightning-speed acceleration, new math concepts constantly came into focus here at Goretti. In geometry, students analyzed Euclid's theories and sought practical applications of these concepts. Solving problems using the Pythagorean theory and the more complex trigonometric functions, provoked students to fathom the hypothesis of earlier mathematicians. Computer careers and other opportunities on the contemporary scene, eagerly welcomed talented mathematicians.

Algebra 2/Trig student Marge Ann Ricciardelli suggested to Phyllis Parcella and Angela Venuto a simpler method in solving simultaneous equations.

Using the overhead projector, Cathy Raymond indicated to her Geometry classmates the point of tangency between a circle and a plane.

After distributing worksheets to her Algebra 1 students, Sister Philippine lent assistance to a perplexed Susan Parker.

The attentiveness of Miss Lewis' Math Survey Class enabled her to review effectively for their upcoming test.

Observation, Experimentation, and Exploration

Student interest in scientific experimentation spread faster than alcohol ignites. Instead of the General Science course previously presented, Earth-Space Science attuned the freshmen to ecology. This year, Sister Dolores Gordon opened the chemistry lab to pupils on every level and allowed them to carry out their investigations with a minimum of direction. At fourth period, this room doubled as a physics lab where seniors explored mechanics, heat, electricity, and many other exciting fields. Farther down the hall, girls probed the microscopic world and enriched their findings with reliable texts and scientific periodicals.

Rita Alexander and June DiPasquale smiled as they examined the "buggy world" of science.

After a brief period of relaxation, these Biology 2 students resumed their study of the environment surrounding them at Morris Arboretum.

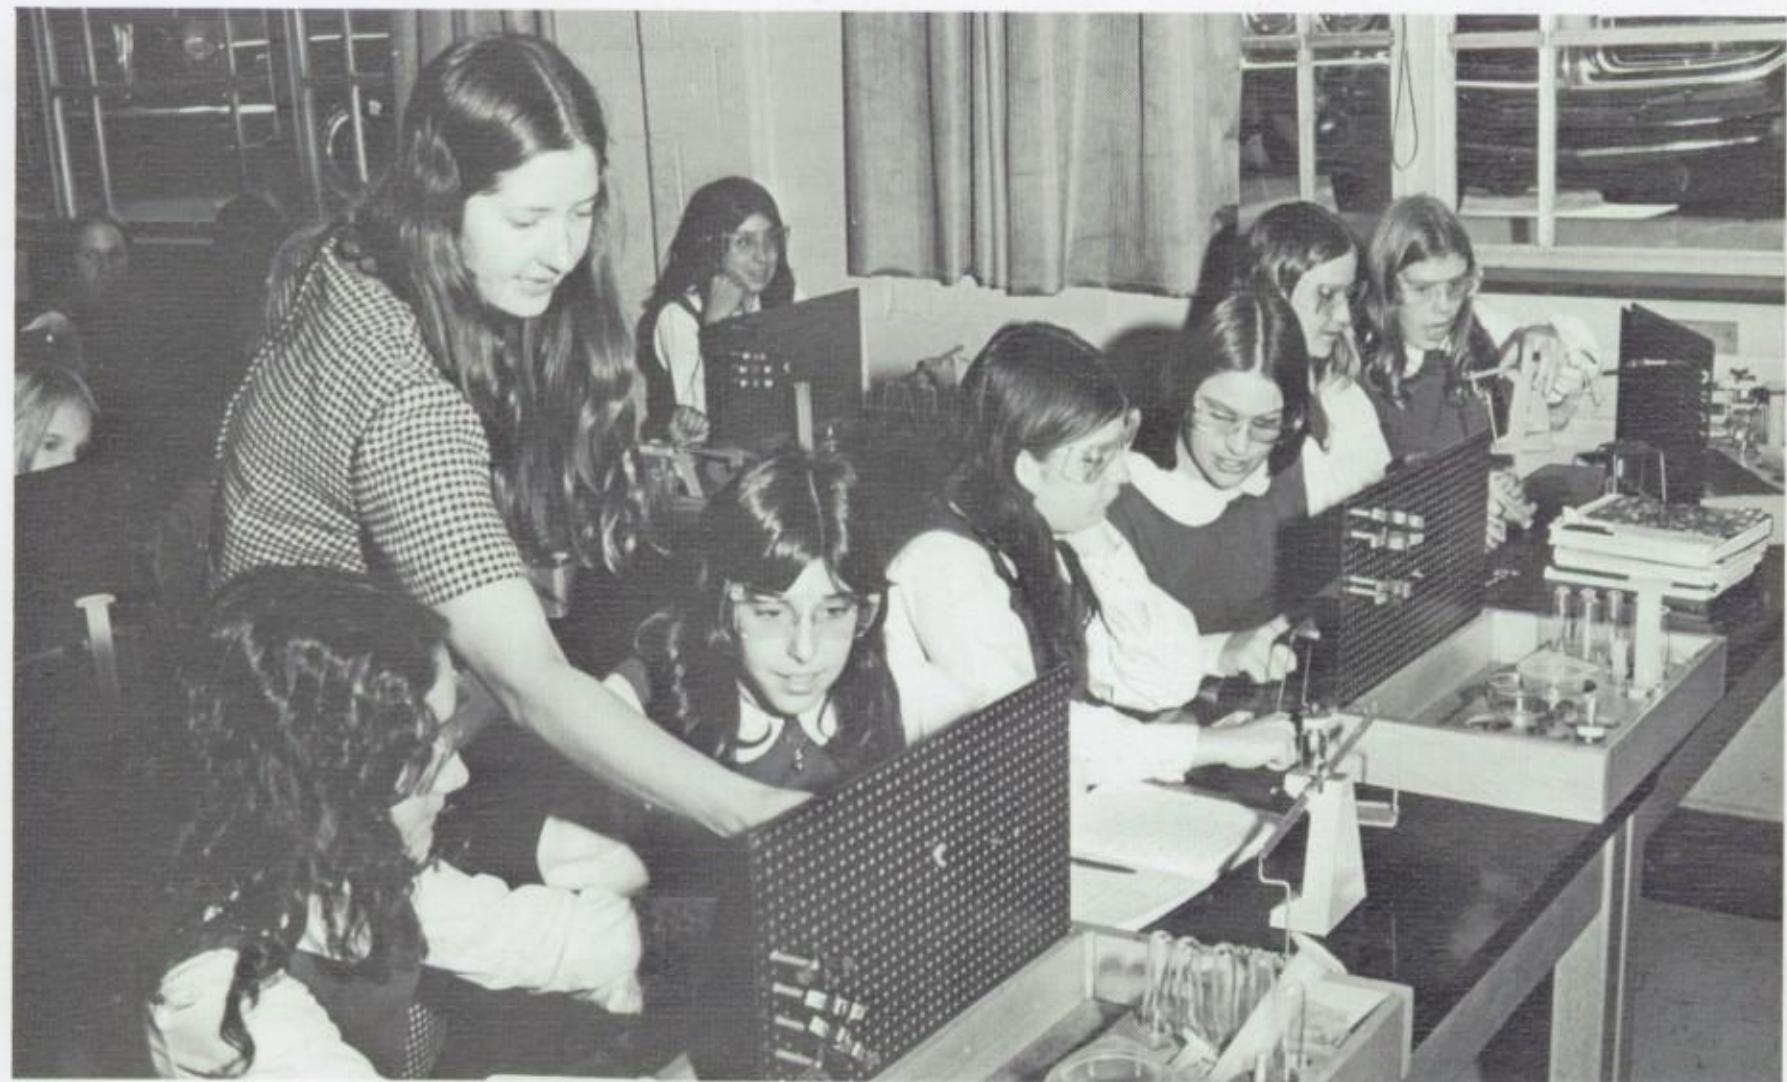

BSCS students directed minds and attention to Mr. Halas' informative lesson on the structure of the cell.

Senior Physics students Adele Cirillo and Arletha Kirby experimented with the forces of friction.

Led Students to a Better Understanding of Their Surroundings.

Mrs. Gill's knowledgeable comment added to the amazement of these IPS students.

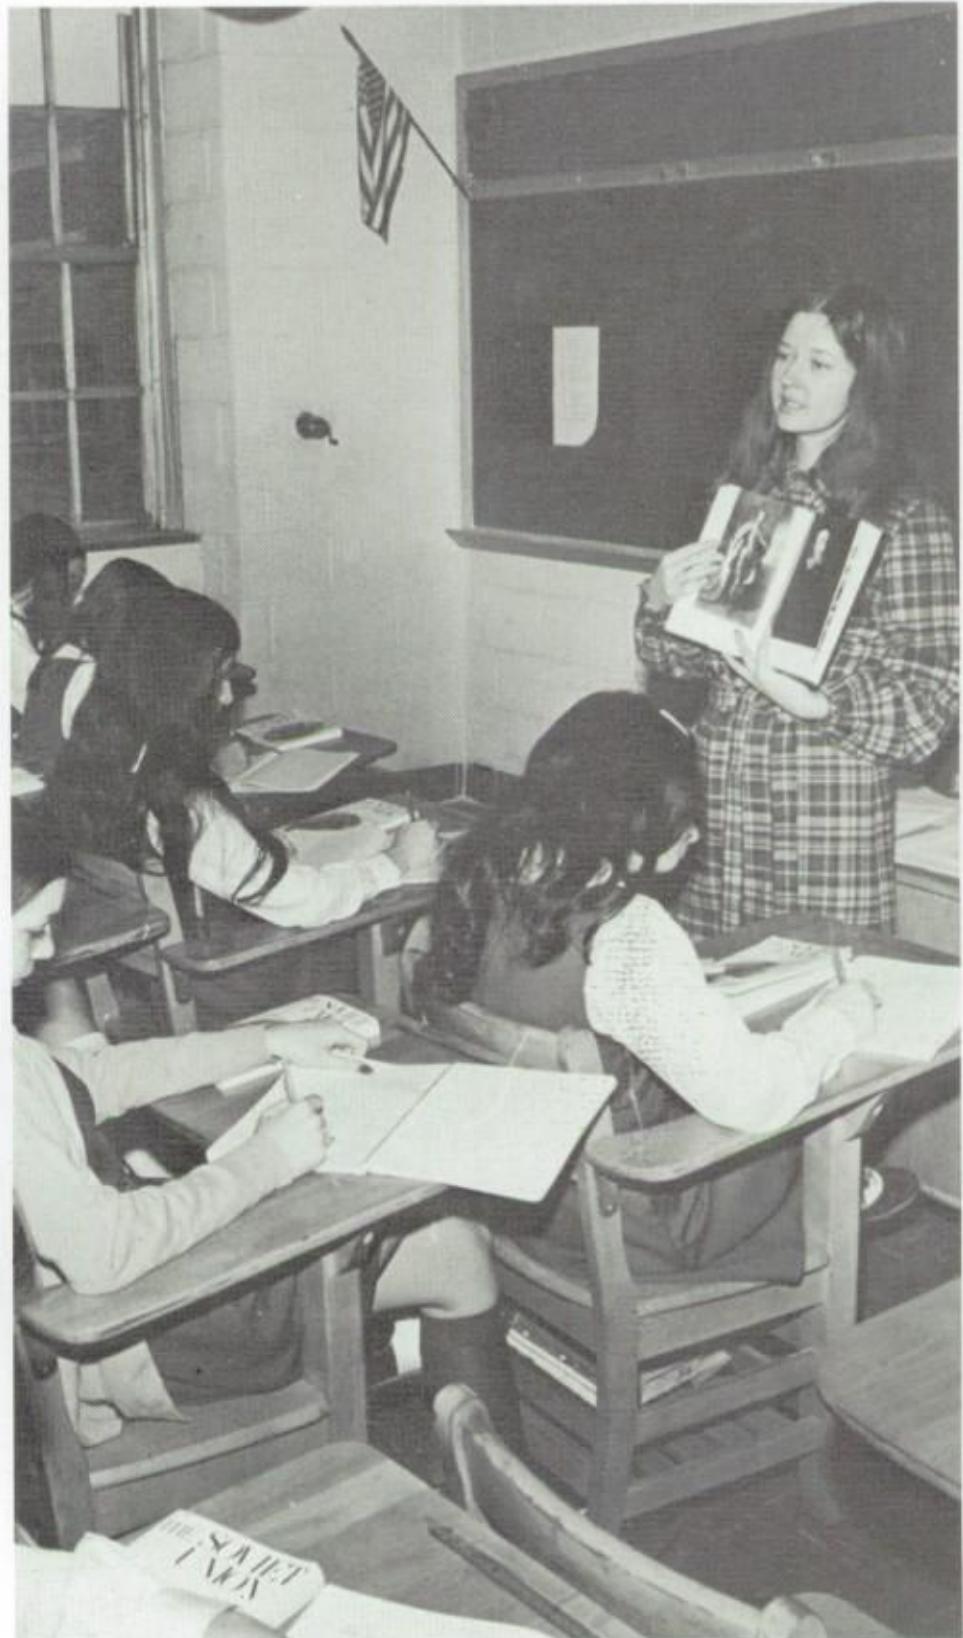

Historical and Cultural Learnings Prepared Our Minds to Attack Future Problems.

Taking the culture area approach to world history used in the new text, THE HUMAN ACHIEVEMENT, freshmen compared such men and events as the Yangs of the Sui dynasty to Emperor Charlemagne and his sons. After a follow-up course of world culture, which outlined the middle-east civilizations, we analyzed our own society with greater insight. "Days of Beer and Posies," one of the puppet shows performed by the students in the social problems class together with the seniors' mock-campaigns deepened our students' interest in community involvement.

Mr. Lawless observed the work of Maryann Valentino and Barbara Scott as they shared ideas on World Cultures.

World Cultures 2 students absorbed the importance of famous Russian men as pointed out by Mrs. Gill.

Ellen Kemeza led a discussion emphasizing the negative viewpoints of the electoral college.

Sister Marie Anita stressed the relevance of the colonization of America to her U.S. History class.

Through the Study of Romance Languages, Students Discovered Ways of Enjoyment by Exploring Foreign Cultures.

Language students compiled knowledge of the customs and life styles of the European people by attending operas such as LA BOHEME and by observing the art works of El Greco and Goya. Reluctantly, girls with a previous Italian background learned that the more formal expression, "cosi cosi" sounded more impressive than the familiar "mezz-e-mezz." After reaching their ultimate goal of understanding and speaking a foreign tongue with fluency, the students acquired a further mastery of our language.

While trying to bring European culture into the classroom, Sister Carola and her Italian 1 students viewed pictures of the great city of Rome.

Mrs. Eustace and her French 3 students took time to explore the pleasures of French cuisine.

As Bernadette Paterno steadied the Piñata, Patricia Mozzillo blindly attempted to gain its treasures.

Angelina Colopinto, Karen Cody, and Natalie Branai, Spanish 1 students, enjoyed depicting a scene of a traditional Spanish Bullfight.

Patience, Perseverance, and Diligence Today Developed the Successful Secretary of Tomorrow.

Heeding the instruction of their teachers, future accountants learned that proper assessment of debits and credits insured a well-balanced ledger. Students perfected their typing, stenography and office practice skills in a triple-period secretarial course. Seniors scheduled for academic studies mastered the essentials of personalized notehand and typing.

Mrs. Miraglia inspected the progress and efficiency of Kathleen Lott's typing exercises.

Becoming expert typists was worth the price of concentration which comes through the lights and shadows of this typing class.

Joanne Orsino demonstrated for her typing classmates the importance of keeping their eyes on the transcript.

Successful secretaries-to-be, Stenography 1 students, concentrated on ways and means of increasing the quality and speed of their dictation.

The Music Department Broadened Our Scope of

Goretti's violinists, Kathy Cloney, Joy Regan, Marie DeShields, and Janice Crawford, accompanied by Sister Regina Angela, prepared for an upcoming musical.

Musical Appreciation.

Music students strummed, picked, tooted, plunked, twanged, and pounded through scores of melodic tunes. With selections ranging from Handel's classical MESSIAH to modern Simon and Garfunkel's BRIDGE OVER TROUBLED WATERS, these talented musicians communicated with people of all ages. Their study of theory supplied the knowledge necessary to understand and to appreciate the universal language of mankind.

"Is that what I'm suppose to be playing?", asked Mary Ann Pinto of Sr. Regina Angela.

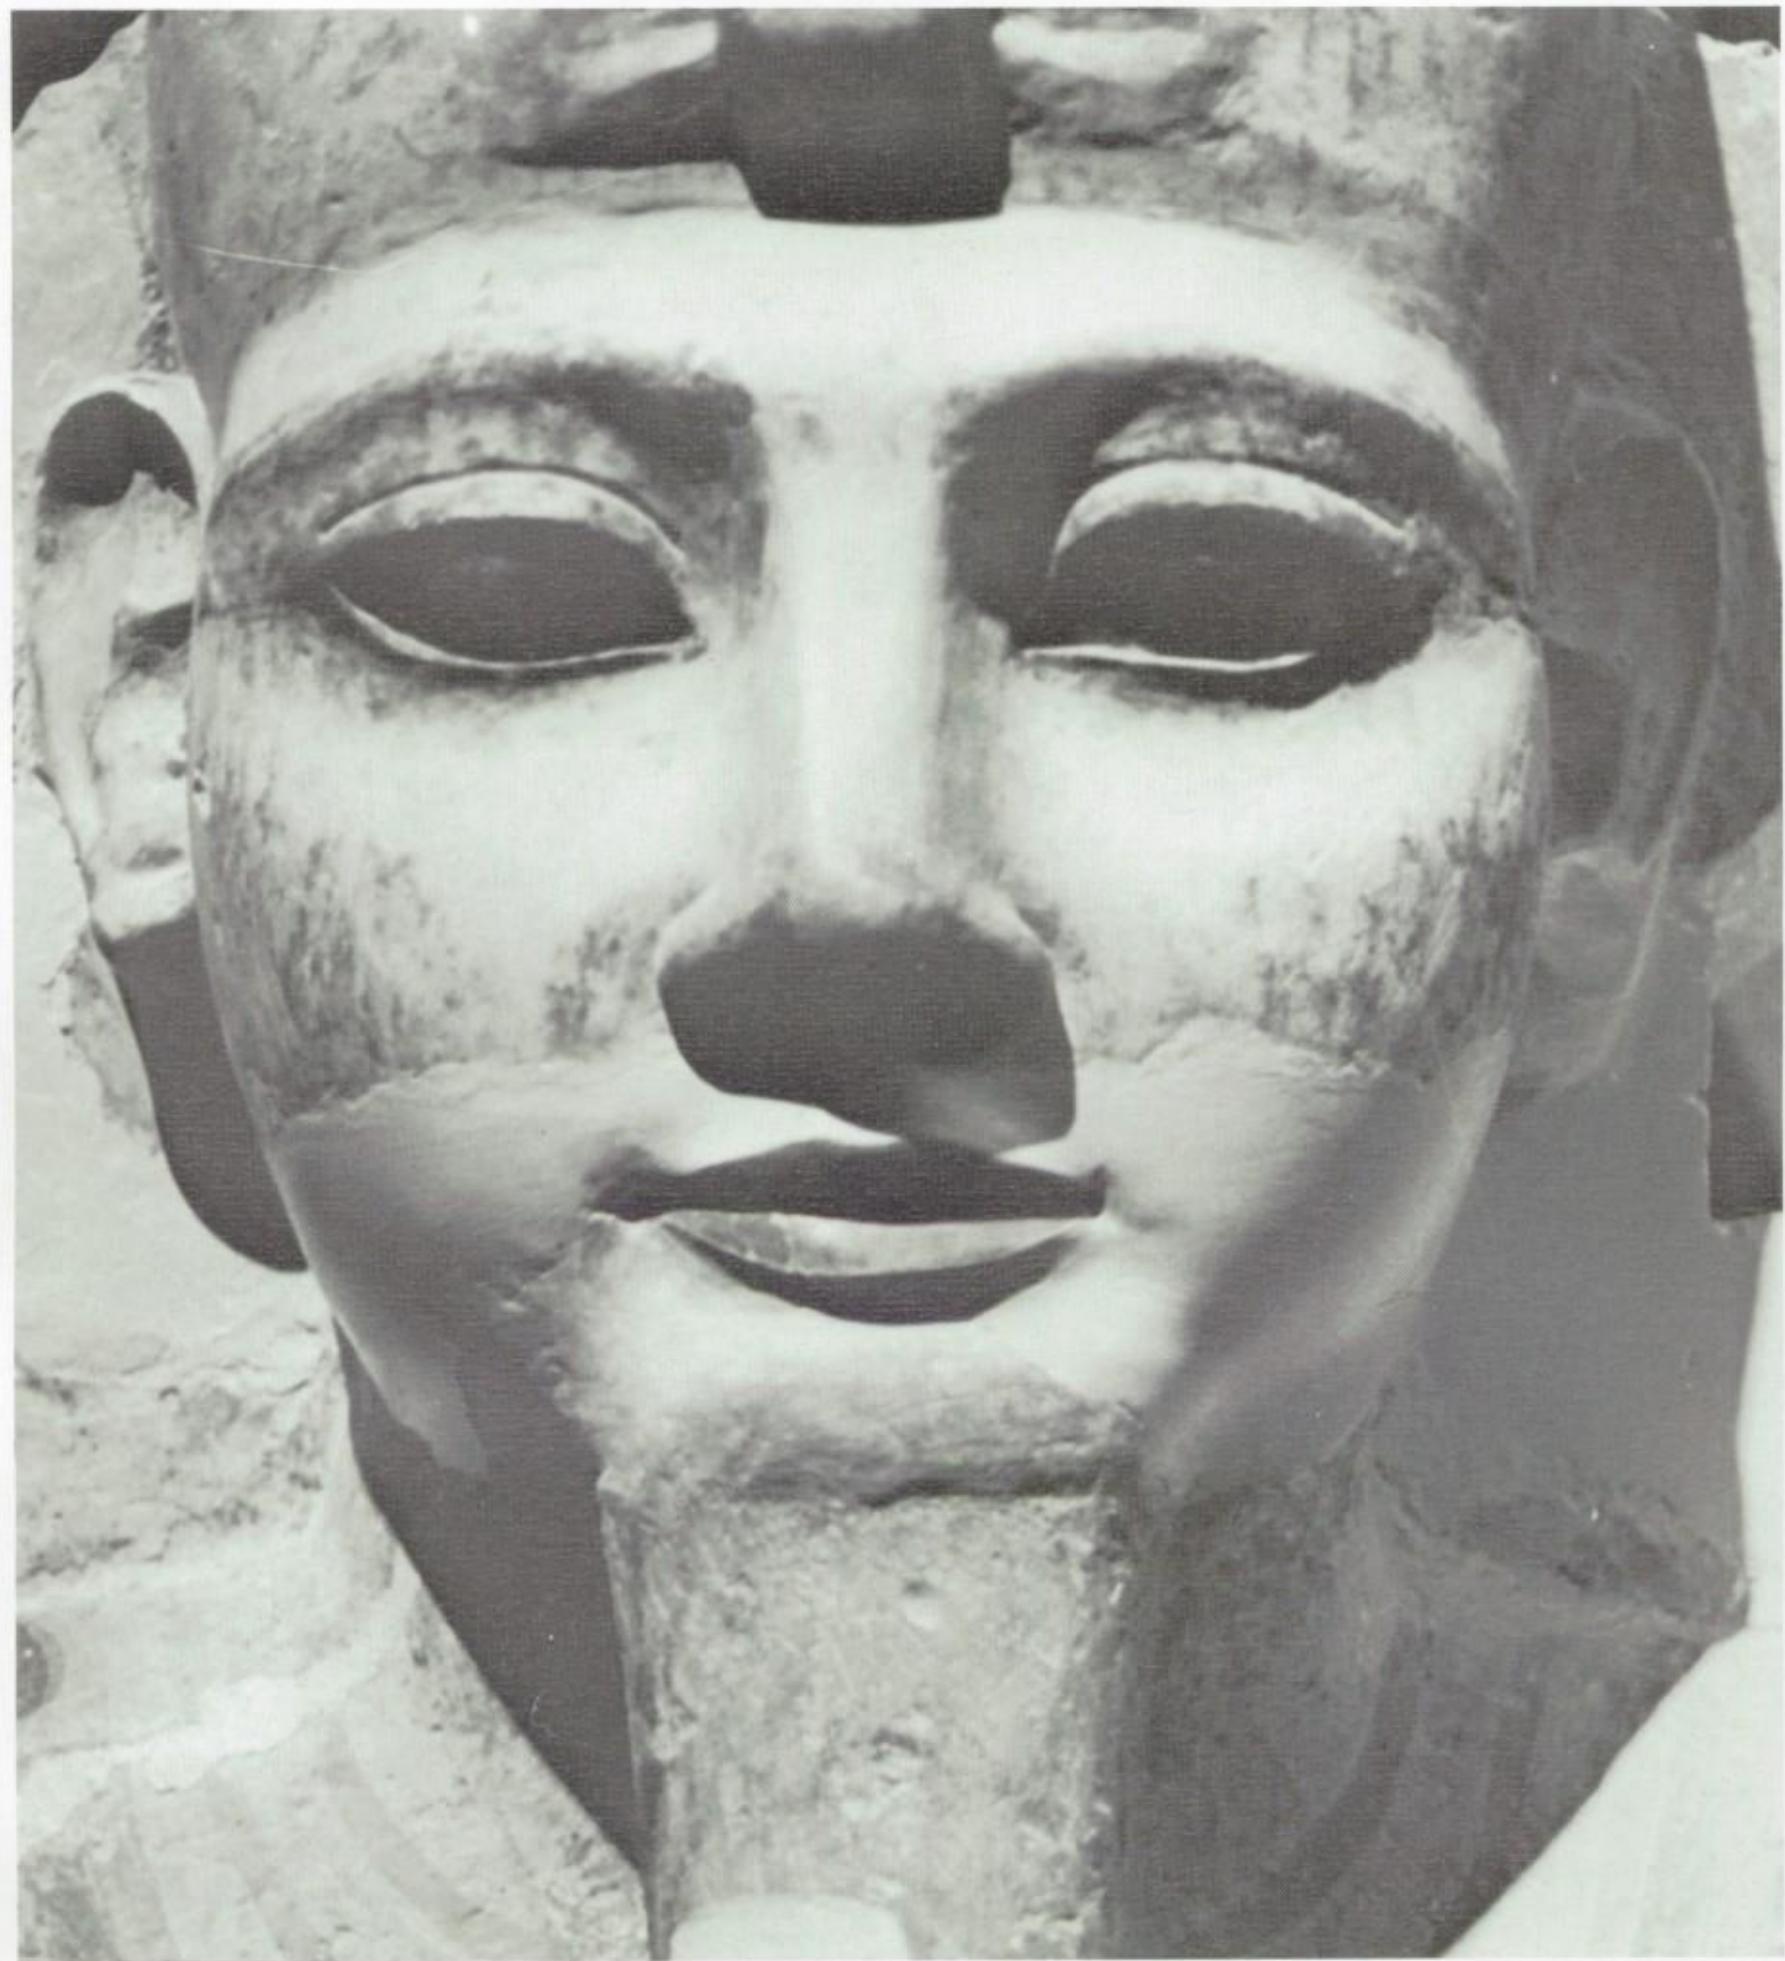

Clarinet players Joan Barrett, June Barrett, and Cynthia Welker strove to achieve perfection. TOOT! TOOT! TOOT!

Bernadette Di Donato emphasized to Anna Marie Boninfonte proper hand positions which produced melodious tones.

Art Students Expressed Themselves With Ease and Beauty.

Staring through darkened eyes, this great Pharoah sits solemnly on the campus of the University of Pennsylvania. This year he was visited by Goretti's World Art Survey students.

Beginning with a visit to the Penn Mutual building, art students together with Sister Mary Renz and Miss Graham planned several trips throughout the school year. For many school activities such as retreats, proms, and assemblies, these talented artists supplied the appropriate decor for the corridors, gym, and auditorium. Seniors made prints which included etching, linoleum blocks, wood blocks, silk screening, and acrylic paintings. In lighter moments, sketching one another provided humorous as well as artistic overtones.

In anticipation of Freshman Day, creative art students eagerly constructed a sunburst.

In a pensive mood, Kathy Ahern worked diligently to complete a portrait.

Pat Gagliardi examined the results of her latest silk screen creation.

Diligence and Ingenuity Brought Satisfaction in Home Economics.

Students of the home economics department learned by theory and application the values of a good homemaker. By experiments, such as disguising an ordinary hot dog with slices of cheese and bacon, the girls produced tasty delights. The sewing room resembled the House of Dior while students hemmed, stitched, and pressed their creations not only for the upcoming spring fashion show but for their own fashionable wardrobes.

Putting finishing stitches on her apron was serious business for Denise Parente.

Sister Maureen Vincent and her Home Economics 1 Community awaited their first Yuletide feast as they prepared to toast each others' gourmet abilities.

Having an observant audience seemed to add rather than subtract as Denise Mangini, a typical Betty Crocker, mixed her culinary creation.

Dear Denise,
Best of Luck through out your life. Stay as nice and cute as you are. Love Gina

Doreen Parisi, Donna Nave, and Debra Medori prepared to "touch and sew" a Goretti original.

Physical Education Trimmed and Toned Our Bodies Through Exercise and Games.

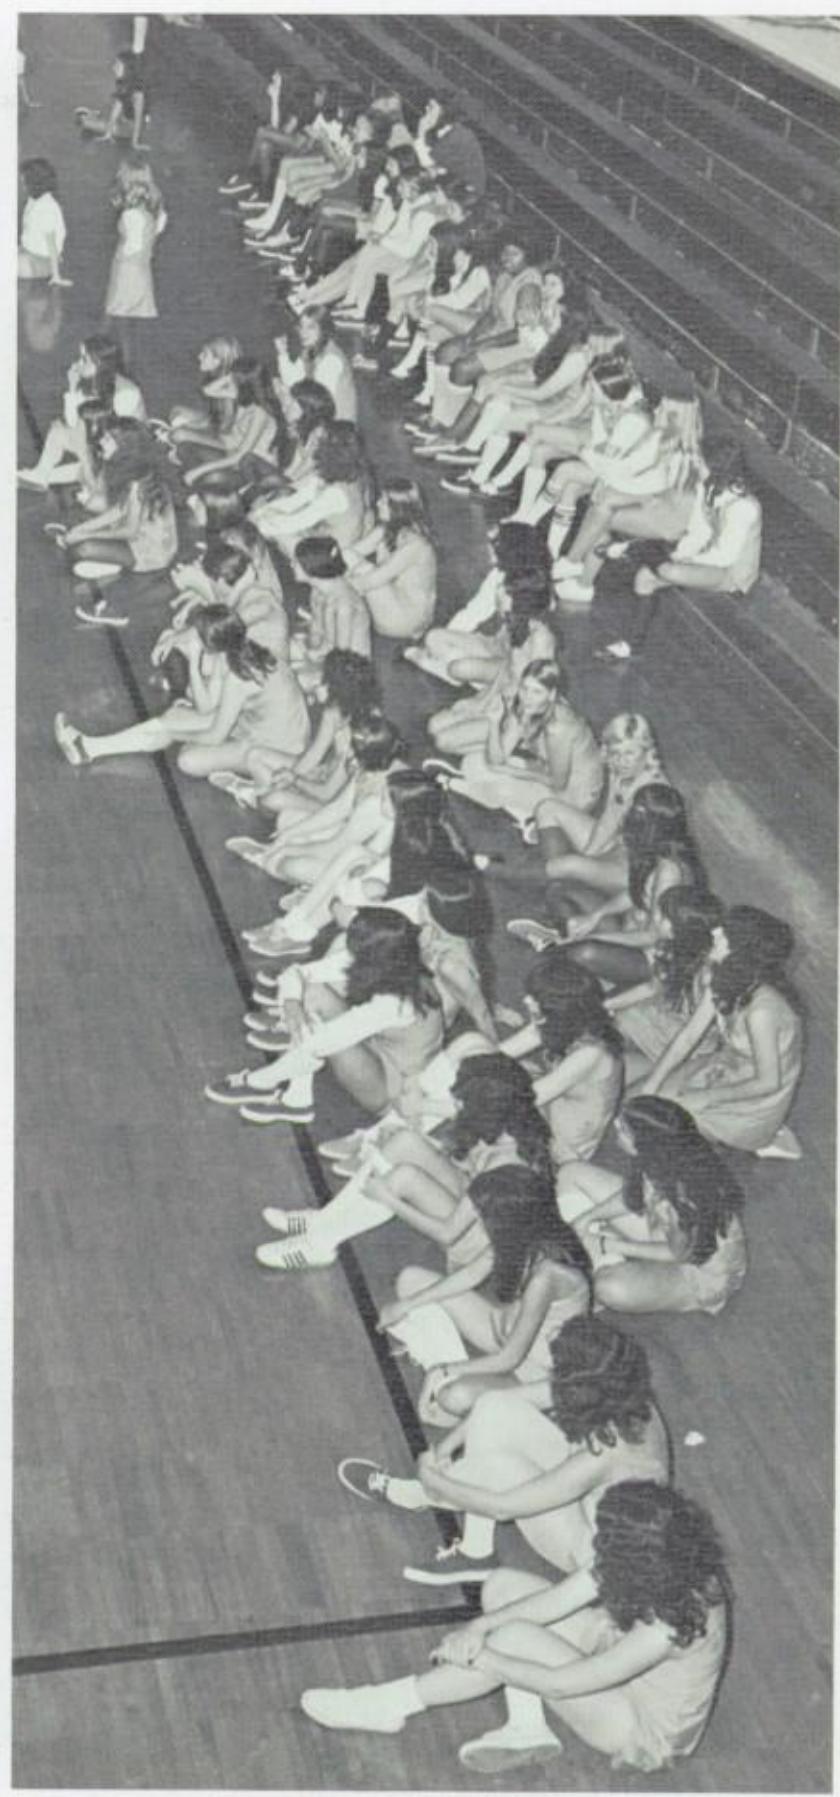

"One, two, three, four . . ." echoed familiarly from Mrs. Kane and Miss Wheilan to all of us who participated regularly in gym classes. We developed and strengthened our bodies with the specific exercises used by the Women's Royal Canadian Air Force. Encouraged by their instructors, students created their own routines. Several girls even devised a method of toning their leg muscles to the "boomp, boomp, boomp" of BLACK AND WHITE.

Mrs. Kane observed the various positions of the "jumping jacks."

Striving for a point, gym students tried desperately to beat their opponents.

A bird's eye view of "energetic" gym students.

"Now what?", said Cheryl Pangara.

In Study and Library, Students Tapped Various Learning Resources.

Taking advantage of our modern library facilities, students utilized their free periods to prepare class projects and to continue their independent study. Girls reported to assigned seats in the new spacious auditorium to cram for the following period's tests. Occasionally a group discussion with Joe Baillie or an excursion to the infirmary provided a brief respite from self-directed intellectual pursuits.

Amateur hairstylist, Jackie Jordan, utilized her study period to develop her talent on Cherie Jones.

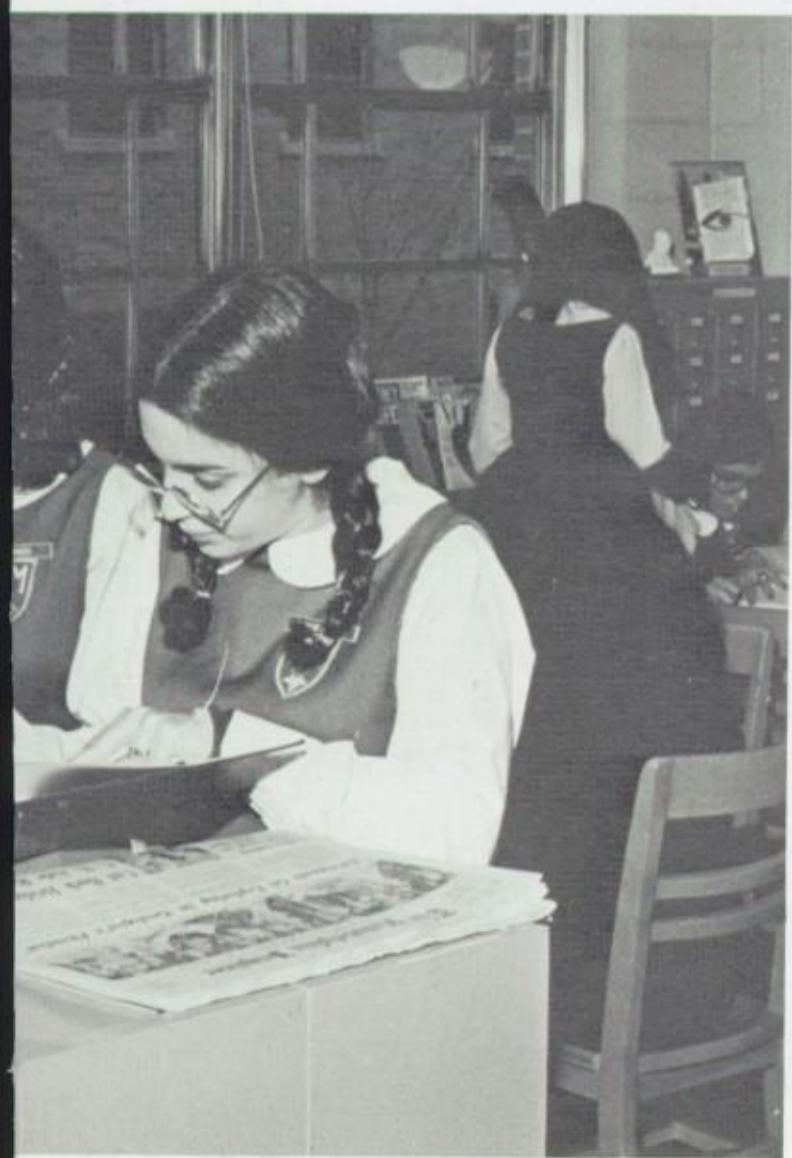

Temporarily distracted from tying her shoelace, Maureen Pacitti smiled from her place on post.

Our library proved to be a font of knowledge for students seeking answers.

Profiting by our vast resources, senior students Elizabeth Scirroto, Joan Annucci and Francine Amatruco collaborated on a research paper.

Bok's Program Provided Opportunities for Students to Discover Latent Talents.

Some Goretti students took advantage of the shared time program at Bok. Courses such as optical mechanics, commercial art and distributive education, trained our girls for careers as advertising agents, store managers, and optical benchmen.

A future programmer, Linda Febbo, operated an IBM machine as Vanessa Hunter patiently awaited the opportunity to prove her typing skills.

Rita Mancini led the procession of girls as they headed back to their "beloved" alma mater after a hard day at Bok.

Dear Denise
Best of Luck in all you do Love
Vanessa - 1973

Learning the art of hairdressing included the setting and styling of mannequin's heads as demonstrated by these Bok sharetime students.

Christine Stanford and Bernice Budow expressed their creativity while preparing for an annual flower show.

Seminar Courses Offered Students the Opportunity to Probe Deeper into Selected Subjects.

Sister Edward Benedict's Senior English Seminar students were engrossed in their discussion of the finer points of modern poetry.

Miss McGinley directed her attention toward her Senior History Seminar students during a stimulating discussion of the '72 Presidential election.

Seminar classes enabled students to pursue literary and historical studies on a higher level. The English seminars engaged in an in-depth study of the classics as well as a modern approach to contemporary poetry, fiction, drama, and expository writing. Meanwhile, in Miss Mc-Ginley's U.S. History Seminar, seniors grasped the intricacies of the Constitution by studying Supreme Court cases. In both English and history seminars, teachers challenged their students to a greater growth through awareness of world affairs.

Diane Calcara, assuming the challenging role of teacher, held the attention of her peer pupils during the analysis of a Shakespearean sonnet.

Involved seniors, taking part in a social problems class, pondered several solutions to human behavioral problems.

STUDENT

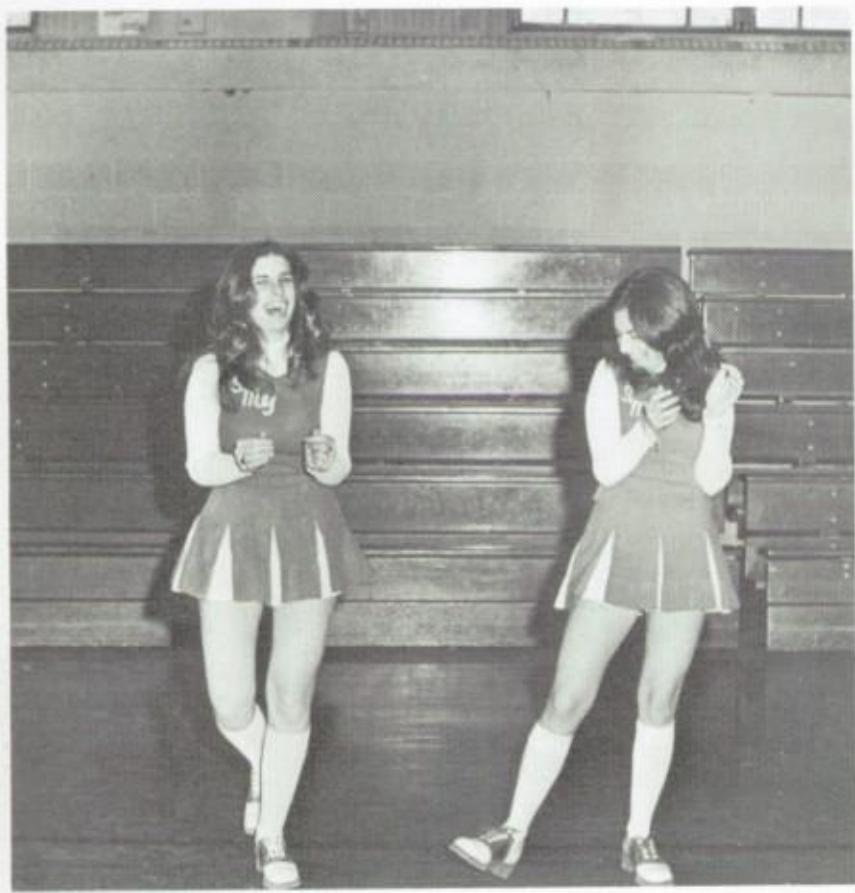

INVOLVEMENT

Basketball Season Stimulated Students' Spirit.

Patricia Mount struggled with opposing team members to recover the ball.

Deborah Jerdon and Donna Lynn Cavallaro burst into laughter when they realized that one of them missed a step.

With victory as their goal, the basketball team along with their coach, Miss Annamarie Sturgis, practiced nearly every day. Numerous hours of work-outs helped team members to develop proper breathing habits and physical coordination. Garbed in red and white, our cheerleaders motivated the team by boosting the spirits of the spectators. The cheers, ROLL CALL, VICTORY, CREAM OF THE CROP described their enthusiastic support of S.M.G.'s basketball team.

Maureen Cronin tried for a basket and onlooking players anxiously awaited the results.

Varsity Team—Standing: Mary Ellen Plumly, Patricia Mount, Mary Joan Byrne, Joan Gilroy, Patricia Kerins, Coach Annamarie Sturges, Lillian O'Connell, Patricia Duffy, Kathleen Cronin, Eileen Kennedy, Kathleen Malloy, Mary McGuire. Kneeling: Co-captain Eileen Gormley, Captain Maureen Cronin, Co-captain Catherine Meighan.

Cheerleaders—Standing: Dorothy Tuttle, Captain Kathryn Calise, Roseann Matt. Kneeling: Joanne Cavallaro, Deborah Jerdon, Marie Iacono, Donna Lynn Cavallaro.

Enthusiastic Mariettas Boosted the Morale of a Loyal Team.

Geraldine Jordan aimed a shot for the basket after she recaptured the ball from an opposing team member.

Frances Mulhern, center, and her teammates, Clare Kelly, Joyce Mulhern, and Charlene McHugh, created spirit of enthusiasm for the upcoming game.

Denise Capotrio kept an accurate account of the games' statistics.

Cheerleaders—Sitting: Lisa Cavallaro, Elaine Sterritt, Gina Tropiano. Kneeling: Kim Novello, Maria Orfeo. Standing: Jo Anne Guardiani, Judith Ciccarelli, Barbara D'Ancona. Missing: Kathleen Raymond.

Outbursts of enthusiasm provided by the A.A. Representatives set the atmosphere for a winning game.

Team Members Contested in the Competitive Realm of Sports.

In a crouched position, Captain Maureen Cronin steadily awaited for the ball to reach Geraldine Jordan.

Diana Capotrio slid into base evading a tag by Donna Savistani.

Softball Team Members—kneeling: Captain Maureen Cronin. Standing: Kathleen Cronin, Donna Savistani, Denise Gibson, Diana Capotrio, Stella Frio, and Charlene McHugh. Missing: Linda Saggiomo, Geraldine Jordan, and Mary McGuire.

Vigorous catching, pitching, and batting practices carried the softball team to their victories. Mr. Halas, who directed the 20 girls at Capitola playground, coached the summer team that also went by the name, "Goretti."

Our energetic bowling team released their spirits every Friday as they knocked over pins to reach the Southern division championship. "Are you ready, Goretti?" echoed right up their alley, as they pressed on for victory under the direction of Mr. Thomas Adams.

Varsity Team Members—Sitting: Barbara Gallozzi, Francine Dellelci, Margaret Clavin, Lisa Del Casale, Marianne Regina, and Patricia Camplongo. Standing: Catherine Zizas, Lucille D'Armi, Coach Mr. Adams, Angela Benignati, Karen Campiglia, Eileen Giordano, and Captain Janet McSweeny. Missing: Theresa Martino.

Francine Dellelci, exhibiting a professional style, attempted to place our team on top.

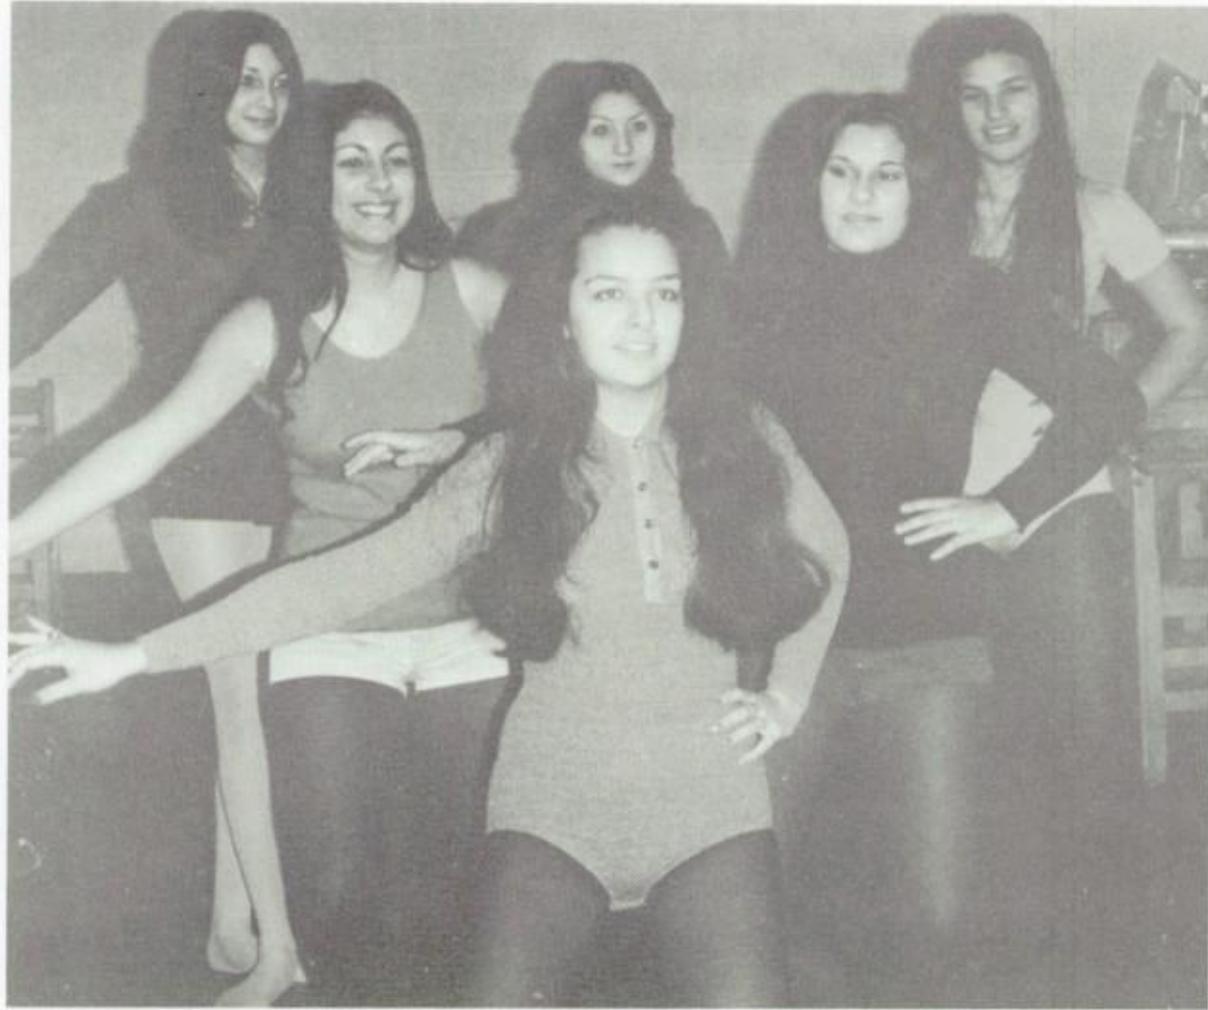

Coach Mr. Thomas Adams and Captain Janet McSweeney discussed the line-up for the next scheduled game.

Interested Students Possessed a Desire for Building Mind and Body.

Students involved in the Constructive Alternatives Committee discovered many new after-class activities. These programs, initiated by several faculty members, aided us in recognizing the grace of the modern dance, the craftsmanship of pottery making, the anatomy of photography, and the relaxation of yoga. Tennis and volleyball offered stimulating team experiences for the outdoor type. For the girl of versatility and creativity, such avenues of development enriched the fall and spring months.

While instructing the modern dance class, Susan Barbuto displayed a flair for graceful movement.

Cynthia Stroik, instructor of the Photography Club, explained the importance of controlled focusing to develop a clear picture.

Attempting to revive the ceramic figurine, Linda Friia, Linda Pizzo and Anita Ettore expertly mixed dabs of paint.

Experiencing cosmic awareness, Kathryn Miller, Nancy Callen, Charlene Parker, and Deborah Olivieri attuned their senses to an equanimity of spirit.

Promising Students Anticipated Future Careers.

Contemplating a successful future, students tested career possibilities through activities in vocational organizations. The Future Teachers Club and The Future Health Careers Club gave members firsthand experience in health and education professions by permitting visits to hospitals and elementary schools in the vicinity. In the Math Club, competition in tri-weekly meets sharpened the students' theoretical skills and wits. Whether performing puppet shows or organizing rap sessions the Students Concerned With Public Health informed us, our parents, and grade school students about drug addiction, alcoholism and other social health problems.

In her concern for public health, Patricia Mahan even utilized humor to emphasize the seriousness of the drug problem.

Concettina Ruggeri, president of the Future Teachers Club, discussed tutoring procedures with her fellow officers, Deborah Robb and Roxanne Giagante.

Italian Club officers, Rita Maticchio, Donna Braccia, and Linda Pandolfi scanned popular Italian magazines.

Patricia Mozzillo, president of the Math Club, stimulated members' minds to calculate solutions to perplexing problems.

President of the Health Careers Club, Roxanne Garofalo, pointed out the various opportunities offered by the medical profession.

Dedicated Aides Rendered Valuable Services at Goretti.

By giving generously of their free time, many students improved the quality of services offered at Goretti. From re-shelving borrowed books to collecting fines, the library aides assisted Sister Agnese in the up-keep of our research facilities. Meanwhile, on the third floor, guidance reps acted as mediators between their homerooms and counselors. The main stream of activities such as proms, special class days, or fund drives, depended largely on the energy and eagerness of the activity officers for their success.

Library Aides courteously provided assistance for inquisitive students.

Guidance Representatives Mary Quinn and Mary Jane Deal discussed their future endeavors with Senior Guidance Counselor, Miss McGinley.

Stationery aide Ellen Posnek rendered competent assistance to an awaiting customer.

Performing one of a diversity of duties, the Activities Officers prepared to share in the joyous season of giving.

Working with the discipline office, Joan Micofsky and Dolores Yurick met the demands of teachers awaiting the absentee list.

Josephine Vitale and Lucille D'Armi found that matching misplaced locker keys can be a confusing chore.

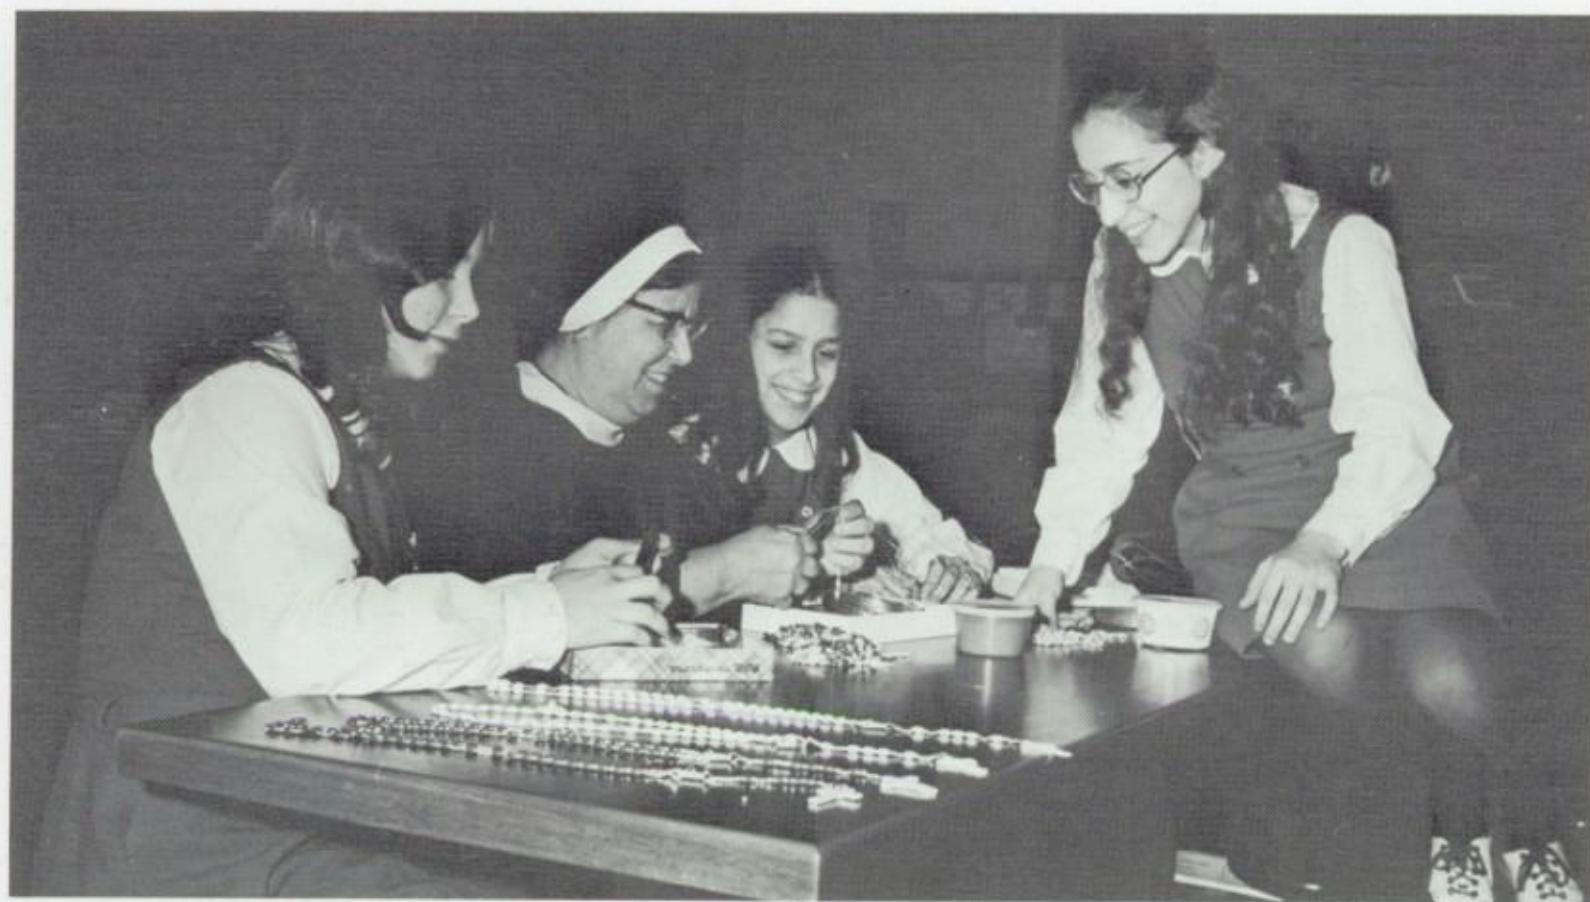

Students Sought to Convey Spiritual Inspiration.

Dedicated students expressed charity in Christian services. Under the direction of Sister Carola, girls made rosaries which they sent to soldiers in Vietnam and to several missions. Besides their daily collections, mission promoters raised money by chancing off stuffed animals and selling cupcakes. Students in the Altar Society offered their time and energy to clean the chapel and to help with the preparations for the liturgy. Members of the Guitar Club displayed their musical talents for our enjoyment and God's praise.

Altar Society Members, Maria Chiardonna, Maria Salvatore, Cecelia Stahl, and Barbara Reed reflected the mood of celebration as they prepared for the liturgy.

Louisa Nori, Patricia Duffy, Angela Franchetti, and Mary Jane Chambers expressed their emotions through "sounds of music."

Under the supervision of Sister Carola, Rosary Club members Angela Pallante, Carol Ann Barrale, and Carol DiGirolamo undertook the task of beading rosaries for servicemen overseas.

Mission Promoter Cheryl Rogers appeared pleased as Josephine Rollo answered her plea, to aid poor children, by placing a coin in the box.

Student Government Exercised the Cadence of Leadership

Our student government meets every Wednesday afternoon to attain a better student-faculty relationship. Too, this group initiated money-raising projects, checked absentees, late slips, lockers and carried out other routine duties. At a flea market, council members manned booths, ran errands, and made candles and plaques to help the Mothers' Club raise funds. Their other achievements included procuring vending machines for the cafeteria and putting Sophomore Day on the school calendar. With the assistance of Mrs. Mulvey, moderator, our officers worked for a more progressive student government.

Following the installation ceremony, Donna Capocci pinned on her badge and Theresa Smith adjusted her ribbon as signs of acceptance of new responsibilities.

Student Government Officers: Vice President, Gerry Di Santis; President, Rosemary Dattilo; Treasurer, Tina Serici; and Secretary, Linda Risoli.

Senior Class Representatives enthusiastically discussed the contents and arrangement of the Student Handbook.

Sophomore Representatives departed cheerfully after a long, arduous meeting while others paused a minute to relax.

A Freshman Class Representative approached the stage with dignity to await the forthcoming ceremony.

Junior Representatives speculated the idea of a Flea Market at Goretti as one inquisitive member inquired about the intricate details of the new project.

Editor-in-chief Lisa Giuffrida added her own creativity and imagination to produce an outstanding Diadem.

Art Editor Joann Sabato and Photography Editor Cynthia Stroik glanced over the work of Copy Editors Donna Scolieri and Camille Striano.

Diadem Staff Recorded a Cascade of Events

This year, the senior Diadem staff chose the theme, Cadence and Cascade, to depict the Class of '73. The members sought to carry out appropriately their ideas of the growing processes, the moving sequences and the rhythmical harmony of life at Goretti in their designs, pictures, captions, and copy.

Business Section: Lisa Troilo, Joann Di Cesare, Dorothy Rocca, Michele Zaccagnini, Maria Valentino. Sitting: Marian Silvestri. Missing: Maria De Martino, Denise Raffa.

Activities Section: Standing, Kathleen Candeloro, Margaret Maulman, Deborah Civa, and Barbara Gallozzi. Kneeling: Frances Palladinetti, Geraldine Di Donato, and Patricia Campolongo. Sitting: Andrea Cavallo, Deborah Alesi, and Joanne Anello.

Senior Section: Standing, Joan Louderback, Theresa Molony, and Joanne Masci. Sitting: Ruth Vienazindis, Arlene Fortunato, and Maria Di Colli.

Faculty Section: Marilyn Abiva, Suzanne Anastasi, Karen Judge, Joanne Serpentine, Deborah Candora, Maria Rugusa, Kathryn Elliott, Sheree Brown.

Classes Section: Lisa Mahoney, Antoinette Evans, Maria Lucidi, Janice De Nito, Helen Marquis, Rose Fantasia, Deborah Robb, Theresa Tarantino, Sally Ann Cabibi, Anna Ciociola, Jane Fierko.

Editor-in-chief Margaret Moran smiled as she examined the finished product—Goretti's A+ newspaper, The Crown.

Crown Members Published Recent Happenings

On receiving the year's first issue of the Crown, readers noticed changes in the format. Besides revising headline style and type, the staff also varied layout for their second page. Too, they published six editions for 1972-73. Directed by Sister Virginia Maria, these reporters kept us informed about S.M.G. and community events.

Staff members Virginia Marino and Johanna Natarella selected the type face for the first edition of The Crown.

"Salute!!" cried Editors Joan Gwin, Rosemary Villone, Isabel Del'Orface, Donna Angelieri, and Lena Flacco, as they celebrated the successful completion of the final edition of the school newspaper.

Second page editor Donna Angelieri instructed typists Deborah Olivieri, Theresa Carlino, and Gloria Pecca on the proper methods of typing headlines.

Rhyme, Rhythm, and Prose Stimulated Talented Students

Goretti's literary magazine, The Patroness, offered gifted students an opportunity to express themselves. Poetry and short stories, some of the genre found in this publication, numbered most of the pages of this student magazine. Art took on new dimensions in this year's edition. Sister Virginia Marie especially commented on the abundance of talent this year.

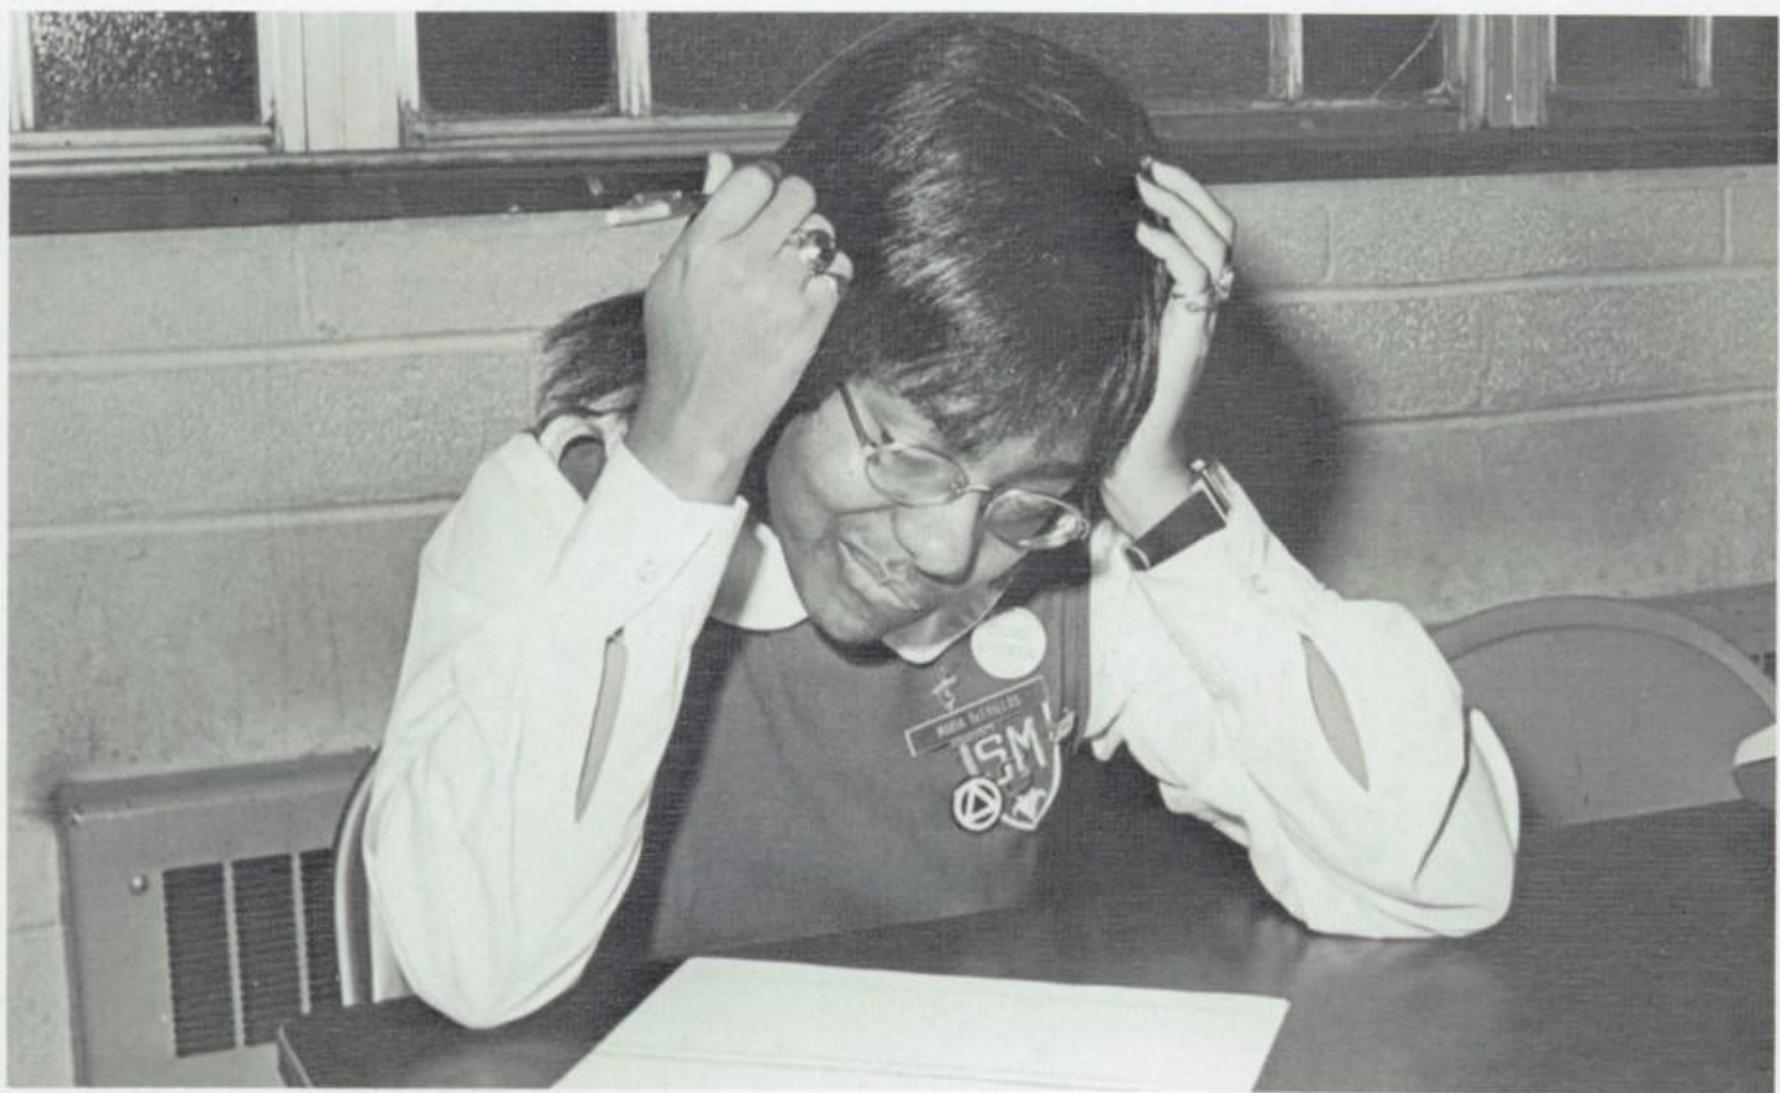

Editor-in-chief Rosanne Zavrel smiled as she flipped through the files of previous literary magazines.

Grace Mikstas, Kathleen Valenza, Adele Cirillo, and Diane Cavallaro submitted their views on creating an imaginative literary magazine.

Rosanne Zavrel nudged typists Sandra Pecoraio and Catherine Beach after they dozed off for a few moments.

Perplexed by poetic symmetry, Maria De Shields composed a poem to be published in The Patroness.

Orchestra Members Unveiled Musical Abilities Through Cadent Performances

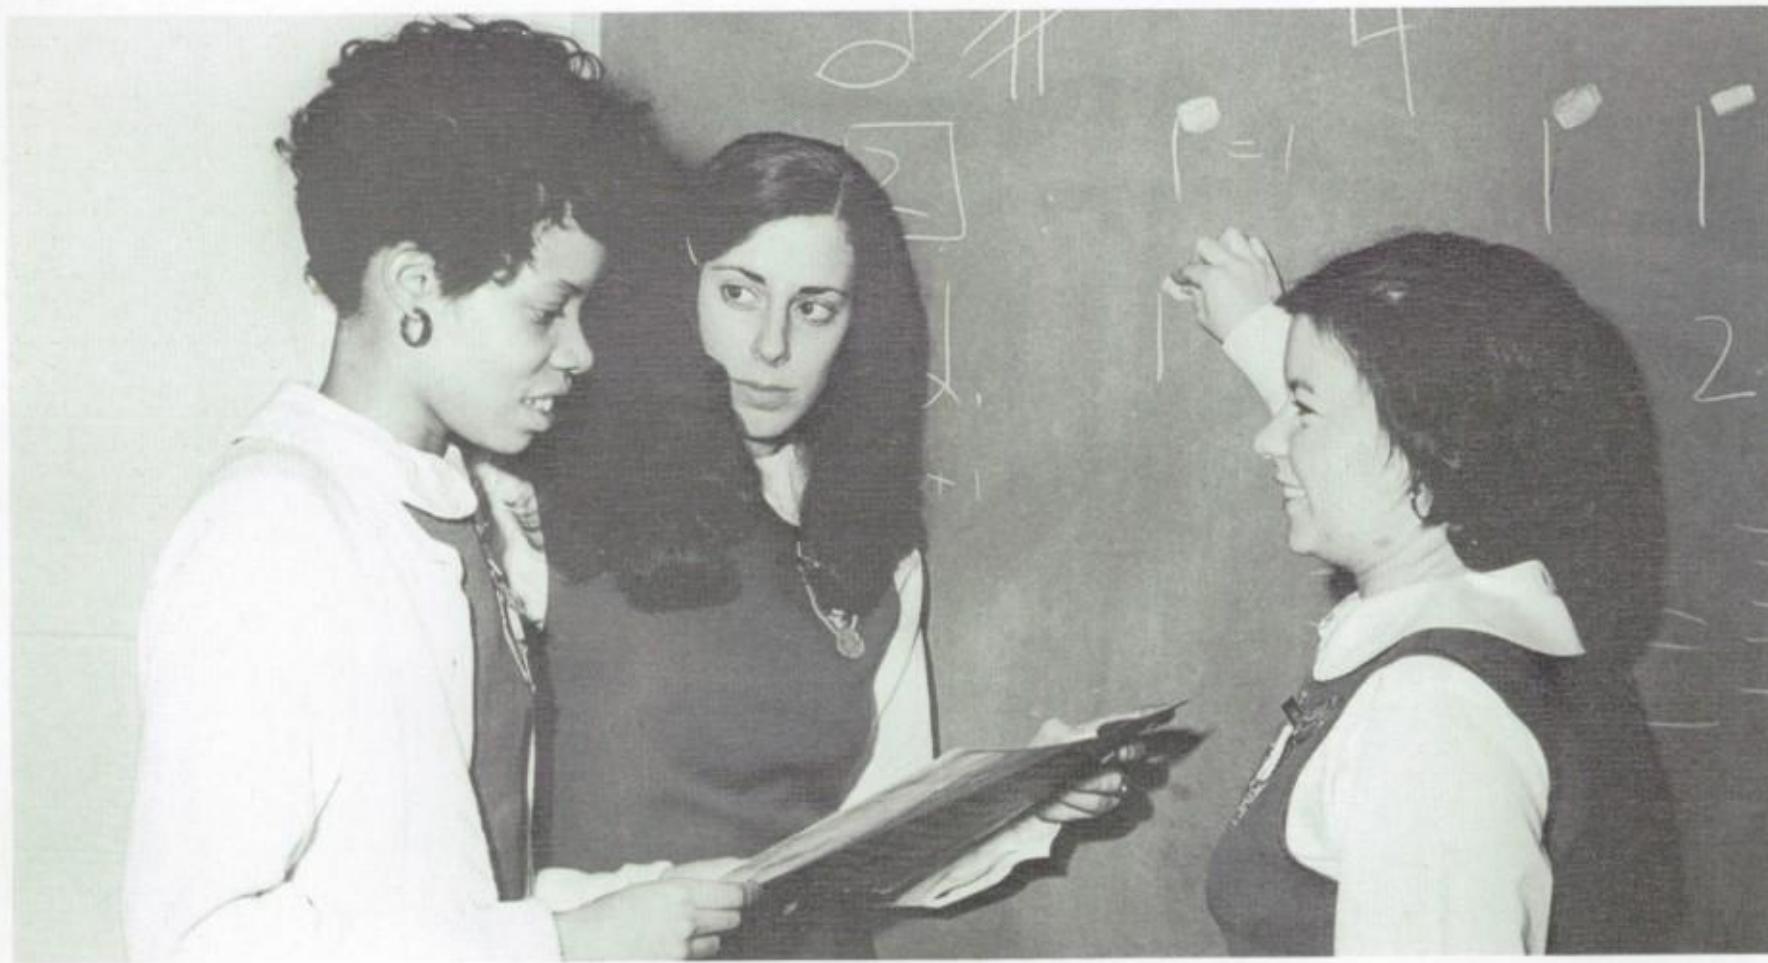

Goretti's orchestra opened a world of opportunities to its members. Student musicians not only studied classical melodies and modern vibes, but also performed these arrangements at the spring musicale and other seasonal concerts. In this stimulating atmosphere, students developed their talents and provided others with the joys of delightful performances.

Conductor Mr. Di Polis directed the orchestra with a dynamic feeling for music.

Cellist Regina Davis shifted her hand into a higher position to reach a note for a popular melody.

Orchestra president Rita Alexander and vice president Angela Franchetti sight-read sheet music while secretary Elizabeth Norman explained the tempo of the quarter note.

Senior Orchestra Members: Maria McAllister, Janice Crawford, Angela Franchetti, Jane Demchuk, Lucille Ferrante, Patricia Hudgins, Maria DeShields, Mary Jane Chambers, Diane Marchesani, Kathleen Trivelli, Rosemary Forrest, Donna Pinto, Kathleen McPeak, Joann D'Allessandro, Regina Davis, Elizabeth Massare, Dorothy Callan, Bernadette DiDomenico, Elizabeth Norman, Rita Alexander, Maryanne Pinto, Lydia Matthews and Crystal Carey.

The Glee Club Resounded the Rhythmic Flow

Whether singing at City Hall or participating in Daisy Day, Goretti's Glee Club brought happiness to people of all ages. This year at their second Christmas concert, the girls performed a repertoire of traditional carols. Under Sister Regina Angela's instruction, the members communicated with others through the "harmonious voice of creation."

Carolling at City Hall, the Glee Club added merriment to the Christmas season.

During one of their many lively rehearsals, Sister Regina Angela instructed the Glee Club to practice syncopation with the music.

Adele Cirillo conducted the highlights into a melody of songs from Brigadoon.

Senior Glee Club Members:

Deborah Civa, Kathleen Candelora, Donna DeSanto, Therese Desmond, Barbara Schrock, Theresa Marazzo, Christine Stanford, Anna Vitullo, Kathryn Elliott, Karen Judge, Lena Difazio, Elaine Otto, Patricia Panzera, Elizabeth Sarceno, Theresa Schiezzari, Judy Parkinson, Grace Farina, Frances

Students Expressed a Spiritual Mission Within Themselves

Students celebrated the joys of Christianity in a variety of ways. The conversion of Goretti into a temporary retreat house enabled the girls to participate in "Evenings of Reflection." Guest speakers, such as Father Scherer and Father Quinn, motivated the students to examine the spirituality of their lives.

Clasped hands of friendship symbolized the sign of peace during the celebration of the Liturgy.

Miss Mary Graham discussed spiritual insights with the seniors at retreat while Sister Marie Francine smiled with approval.

Retreat master, Father Quinn, celebrated Benediction at the senior Evening of Reflection.

C.S.C. President, Theresa Molony and Vice-president, Arlene Fortunato along with Father Wamsley, proudly displayed the newly purchased banner.

In reviewing the lesson plan, CCD Vice-president, Mary Scotti, and President, Mary Orlando, prepared for their weekly meeting.

Santa's little helper, C.S.C. member Carmella Colaianni, whole-heartedly prepared to fulfill the Christmas dreams of many underprivileged children.

Whether teaching a child religion or consoling a teenager on the V.D. Hotline, the members of C.S.C. and C.C.D. endeavored to assist people in the many facets of life. Important too, is the fact that these students learned the value of helping others as well as a sensitivity to others' needs.

Fine Arts Week Broadened Cultural Awareness

The Fine Arts Committee divided its program into two schedules. The first session, held in autumn, consisted of students' exhibitions, the National Theater Company's production of "Barefoot in the Park," and the annual faculty talent hour. Solos by Sisters Regina Pacis, Therese Josita, and Mary Judith plus the Sisters' Chorus highlighted the latter rendition. The spring agenda included mini courses in artistic and other cultural areas. Meanwhile, the Cultural Loop tours, theater, and museum visits "renaissanced" our local points of interest for many students.

The National Theatre Company relaxed after their stupendous performance of Barefoot in the Park.

Denise Federaro demonstrated her artistic creativity through her pastel sketches exhibited in the gymnasium.

Roseanna Girolame exemplified the art of lace making, an old Italian custom, at the Students' Art Exhibit.

Playing the "Nutcracker Suite," Sister St. Paul displayed her talent for musical entertainment in the Faculty Talent Show.

With the help of Miss McGinley, Debora Russo acquired general information concerning the progression of community affairs.

Students Merited National Honor Society Membership

By displaying scholarship, service, and leadership, sixty-two juniors merited membership in the National Honor Society last May. For a minimum of two hours a week these students served their peers as well as the faculty. Their contributions included tutoring, checking papers, cutting stencils and assisting generally with academic chores. Because of their dedication and generosity, these students merited recognition both within the school and the Society itself. As a result, student members who so desired, competed for financial aid for further education offered by this organization.

Debbie Timmins, a member of N.H.S. corrected test papers for Mr. Schalleur.

National Honor Society officers: Catherine Zizas, Vice President; Debora Russo, President; Camille Striano, Treasurer; and Deborah Rotella, Secretary, (missing); held a meeting to answer questions regarding upcoming events.

A Threshold of a Dream Encompassed Junior Memories

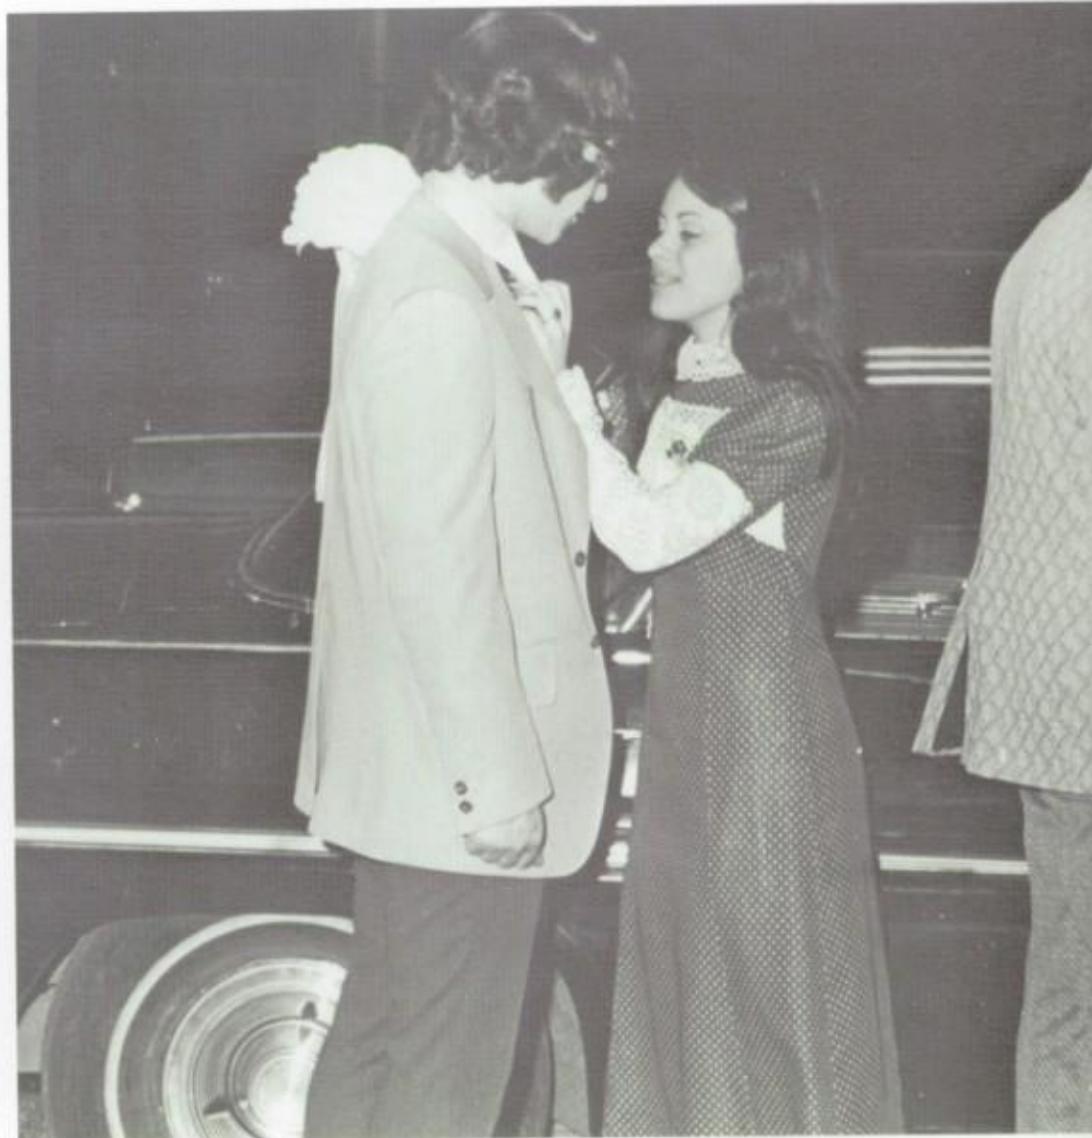

Chairman of the Prom Committee, Linda Forgione and Frank Santiago, a member of Dirty Martha, assisted Father Walmsley in the drawing of the door prize.

Donna De Santo sympathized with Adele Cirillo who pleaded for a date for the prom in "Match-Maker."

Standing on the Threshold of a Dream, juniors reveled in their day of celebration. After receiving red and white corsages in the homeroom, the Class of '73 met in the auditorium to enjoy a variety of student entertainment. Early dismissal allowed the juniors time to make last-minute preparations for the evening ahead. That night, in the school gym, the couples moved to the music of Dirty Martha. Afterwards, at the post-prom, held at the Alpine Inn, the girls and their escorts dined and danced to the lively rhythms of Forest and Turbine Funk.

Carol Di Cova made last minute preparations with her date while Marianne Ponticella's escort lent her a helping hand.

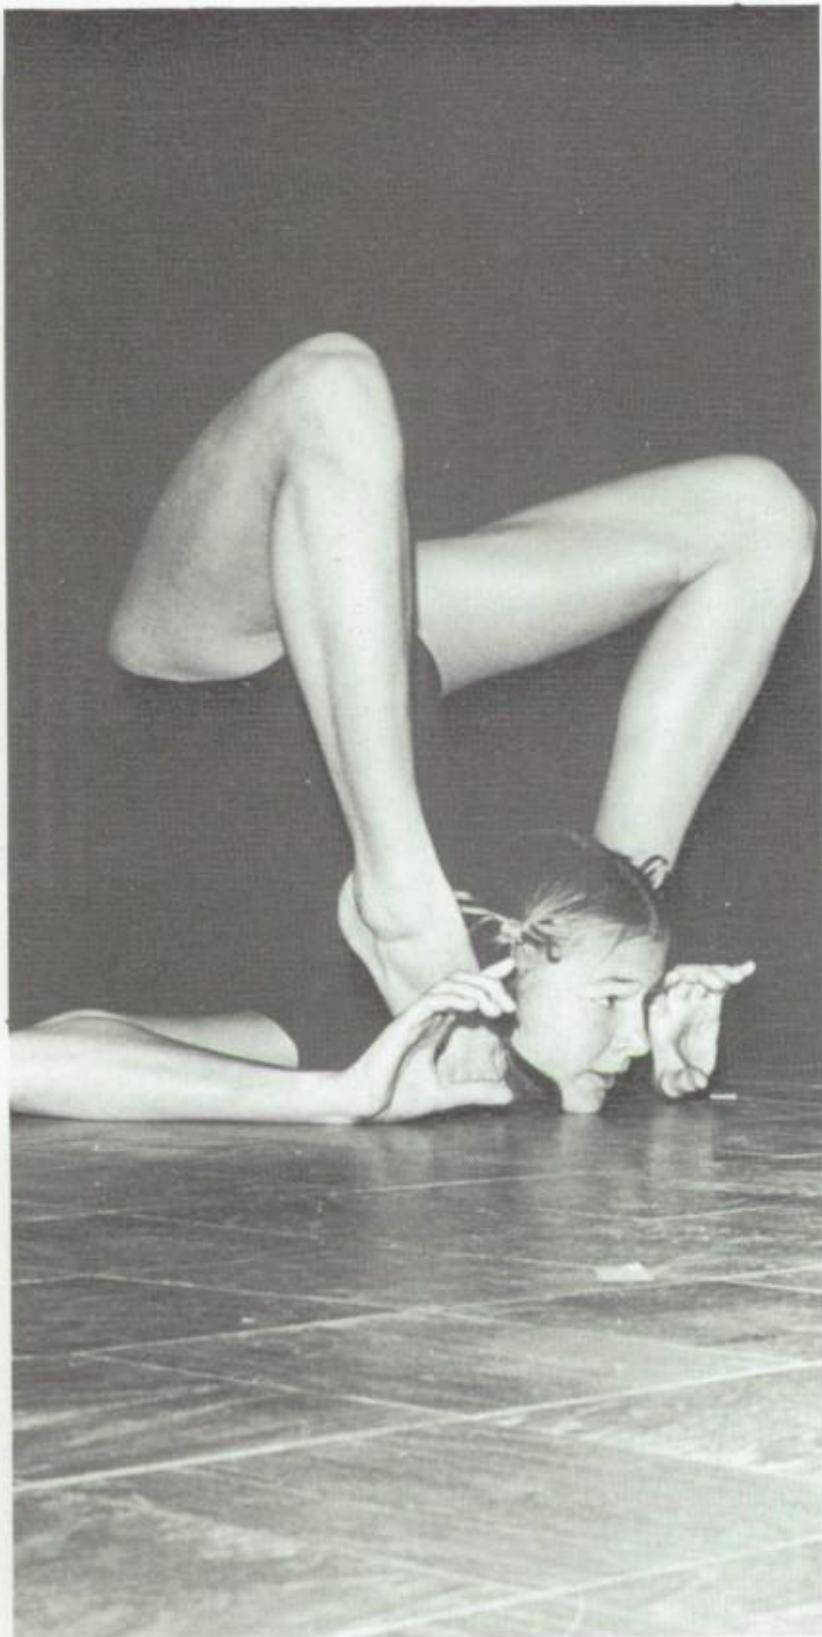

Captured during a sentimental moment, Maria Marinucci and escort romanticized with visions of dreams.

While strolling through the threshold, Donna Scolieri and escort gazed at the scenery which surrounded them.

Freshmen Experienced Warm Welcome

The morning of October twentieth dawned brightly for freshmen who sang cadences of Alma Mater for the first time. Big sisters bearing green gifts of lollipops, bottles, and toys welcomed the Class of '76. The Freshman Day play greeted the newcomers with hopes for their future happiness and success at Goretti.

Performing with pliant movements, Annette Ramoska developed a unique position.

Francesca Viesta pacified her emotions during the aura of Freshman Day.

Carol Mazza and Janet McCabe leaned toward their big sister, Deborah Olivieri, to experience the cadence of friendship.

Sophomore Roseann Tiralli posed on the edge of the stage after impersonating a Sesame Street character.

*Skits, Friendliness, and Hop combined

Sophomore Day*

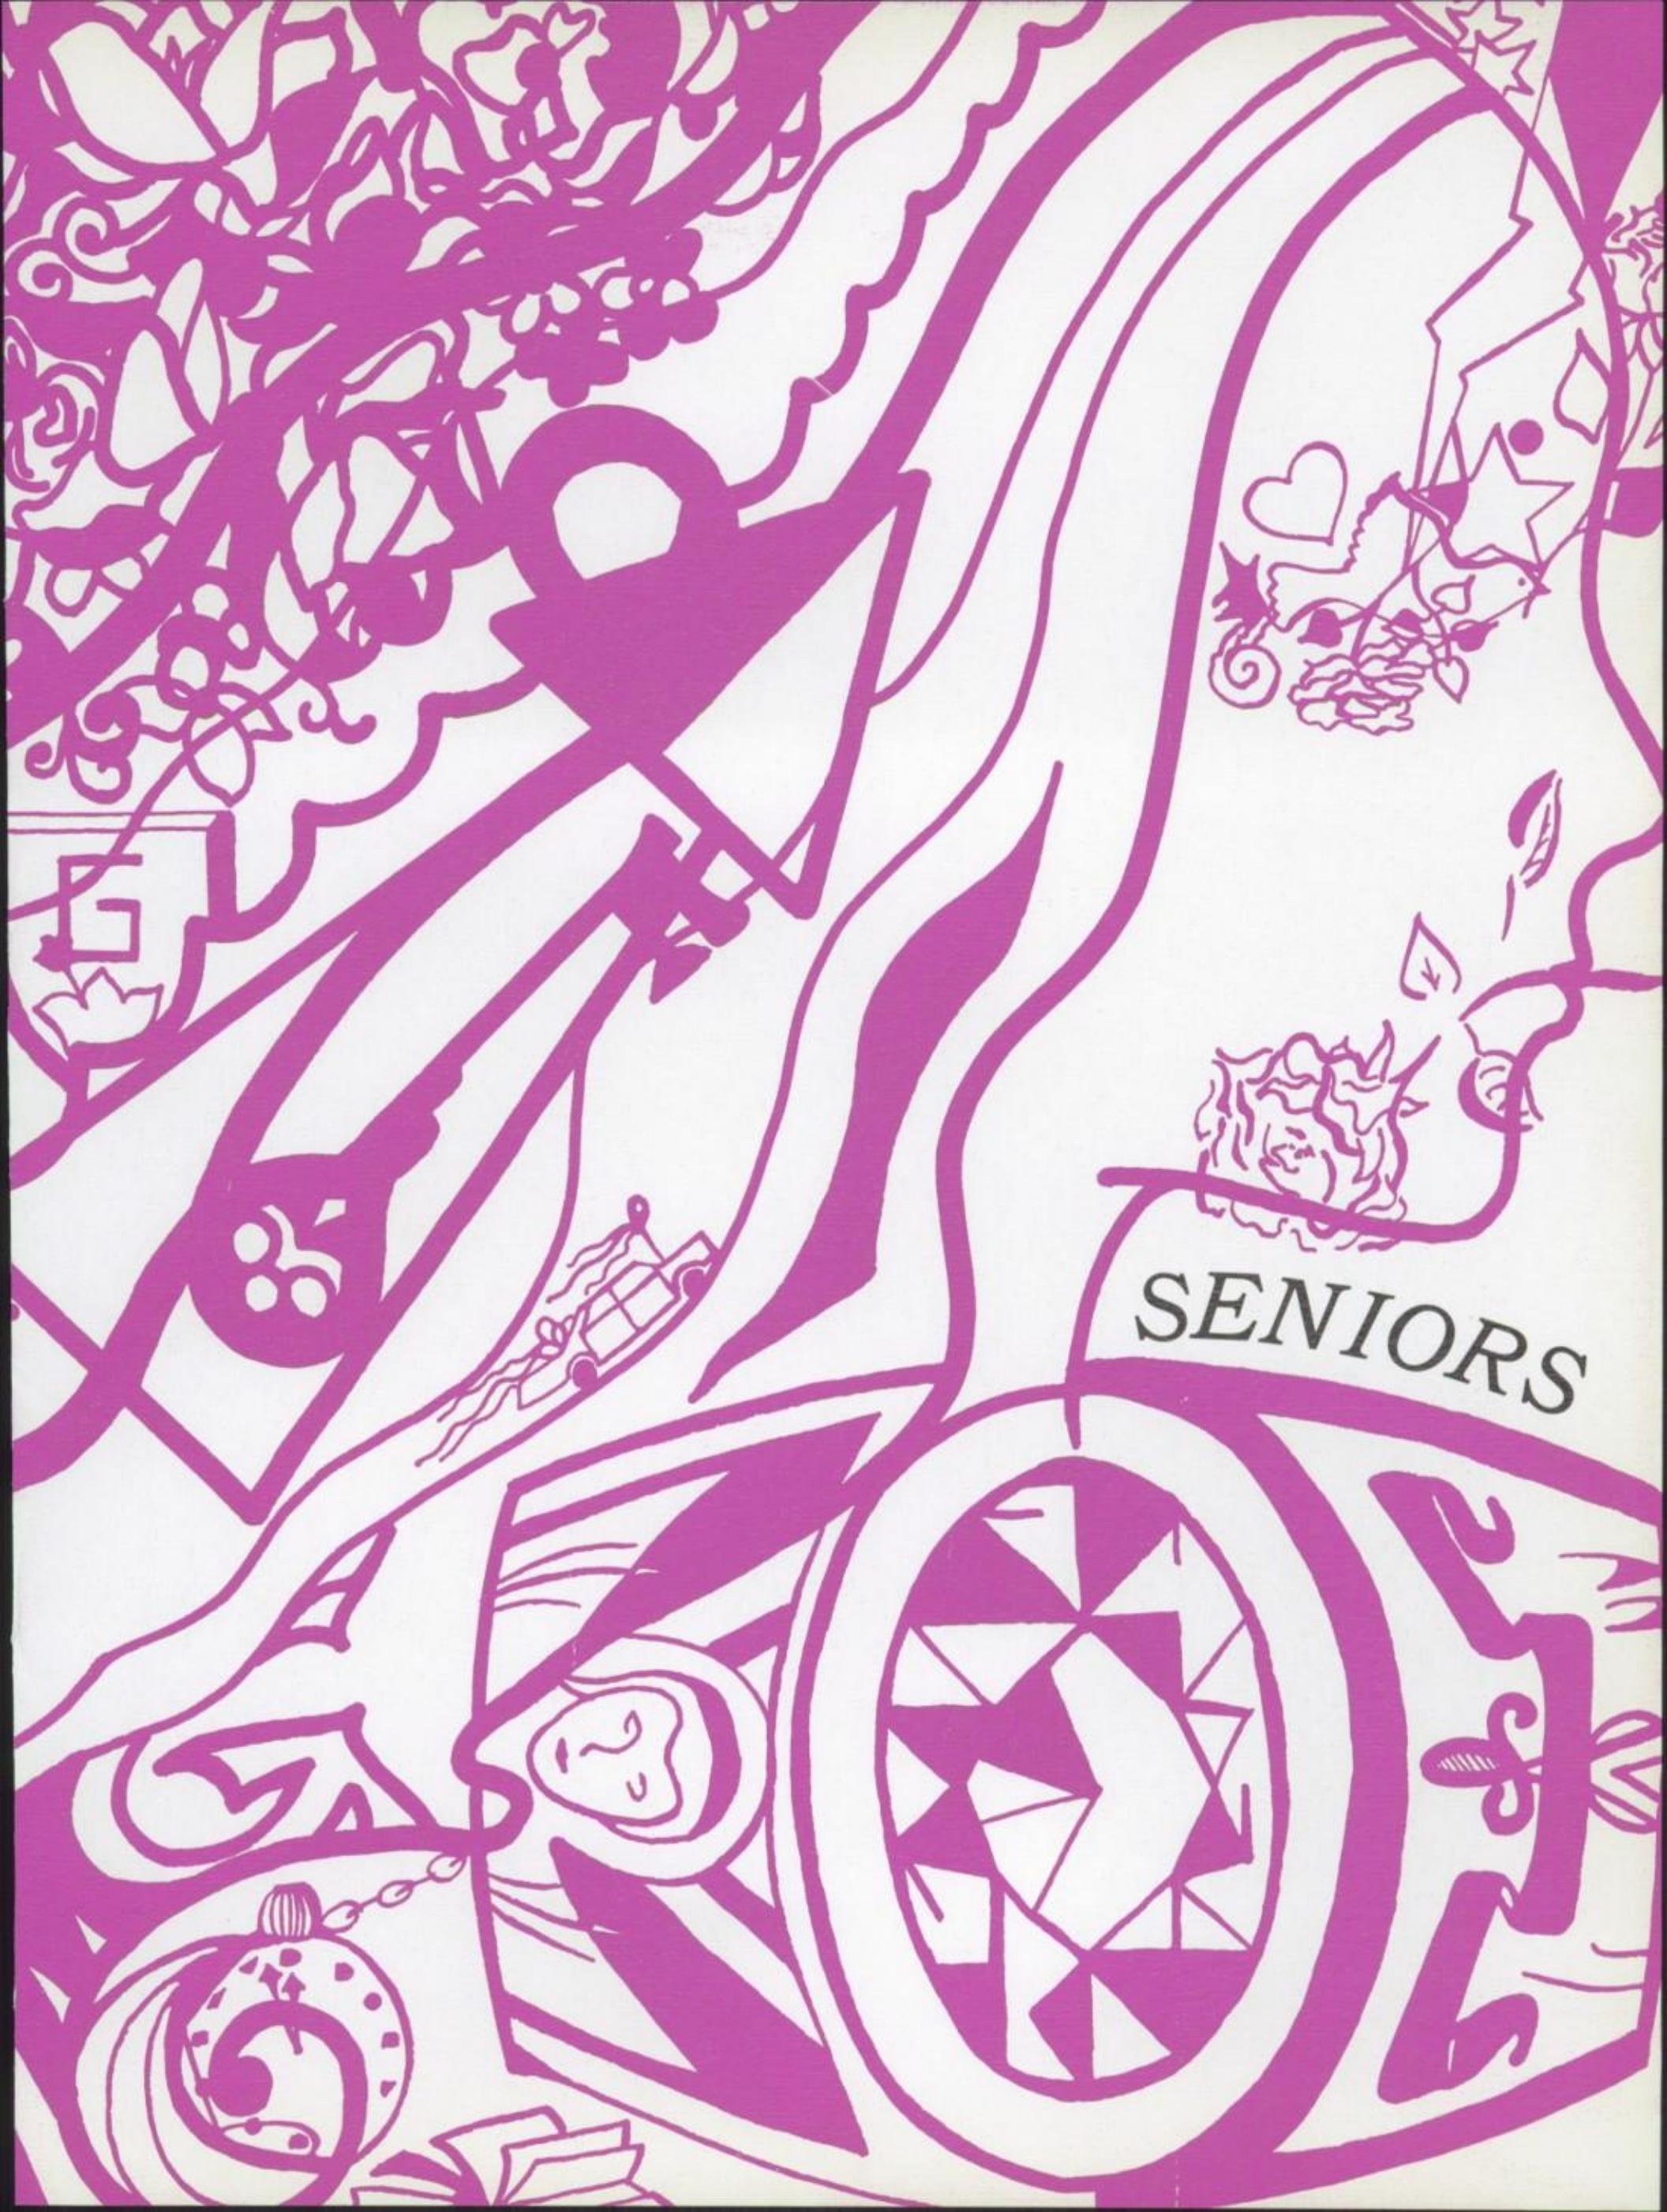

Leading the way to the hop, Erika Iovacchino and her escort anticipated a pleasant evening.

Excited Sophomores entered school attired in pink and white to partake in the festivities of the first, real Sophomore Day.

Ring Day Symbolized Seniors' Long Awaited Dreams

As they dreamed of garnet rings and tassled caps, seniors climbed their Stairway to Heaven. Thanks to Father Walmsley and the new spacious auditorium, mothers shared in the joyous occasion and Eucharistic celebration. With tear-stained cheeks, outstretched hands, and swollen fingers, the girls awaited the desired seventy-third turn of their rings! The Ring Dance complemented this memorable day. Here, the seniors and their escorts grooved to the timely beat of Asylum.

Ring Dance couples strolled around the "Stairway to Heaven."

Barbara Richards and her escort anticipated an enjoyable evening as they stepped through the ring.

Barbara Schrock and Betty Jo Saracino cried joyful tears as they sang the Alma Mater on Ring Day.

Senior activity officers proudly displayed the boxes containing their precious treasures: the 1973 class rings.

As the excitement of receiving class rings progressed, Antonia Carlson and Anna Ciociola tore the wrappings which revealed their long awaited garnet dreams.

Diane Marchesani shared an excited moment with her mother after receiving her ring.

A Time for Us

The sights and sounds of the ballroom below engrossed Nancy Visalli, Frankie Dickerman, Deborah Jerdon and Sal Testa.

After dinner at the Falcon House, couples relaxed with easy conversation.

The time for seniors, February sixteenth, and the place, the Sheraton Hotel, set the mood for a memorable evening. The Charlie Dee Orchestra created a lively musical cascade for the exuberant couples. The graduates chose the songs, "Here There and Everywhere", "Thanks for the Memories", and "If Not for You", to respectfully depict their feelings for the chaperons, faculty, and parents. At the Falcon House, these couples dined and danced to the sounds of the soul group, Fletcher and Waker, and the rock group, Junction. So ended A Time for Us.

Jane Fierko and Bobby Filippello danced to the melodious sound of the Charlie Dee Orchestra.

Father Walmsley and the Prom Committee made "A Time for Us" a reality.

Patricia Campolongo and Steven Severson ascended the stairs of the Sheraton in happy anticipation of the prom.

As the evening came to a close, Roxanne Palagruto and her date lingered a moment to share thoughts of their night.

The image consists of two side-by-side black and white composite sketch portraits of a woman. Both sketches depict a young to middle-aged woman with long, dark, straight hair that falls past her shoulders. She has a round face, dark eyes, and a gentle smile. In the left sketch, she is wearing a dark, V-neck top and a thin necklace with a small pendant. The right sketch shows her with a similar expression and hairstyle, but her clothing is less distinct, appearing as dark, solid colors.

Inspired by the splendor of the Cathedral, awesome graduates celebrated the Liturgy as a group for the final time at the Baccalaureate Mass.

Graduation sounded a closing chord.
